TAX PAYMENTS SOAR; CHICAGO SETS A RECORD

Reflects Prosperity During 1922.

Chicago smashed all records by its tax payments on its 1922 income taxes. When the time for paying the first installment on the tax expired at midnight, Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, acting collector of internal revenue, wired Washington, as follows:

"Total Goes Up $5,000,000."

"That is more than $5,000,000 more than was collected at this time last year," said Mrs. Reinecke. "And that in spite of the fact that the exemption for persons who receive less than $5,000 a year was increased from $2,000 to $2,500 this year, and there was a graded decrease in surtaxes. It certainly indicates that the Chicago district is more prosperous than ever."

The receipts from the income tax were a surprise to the tax experts in the federal building. These had estimated that the payments would fall at $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 from last year. They had based their opinion upon the increase in the exemption for married men and the decrease in the surtaxes.

Late Mails Bring Influx.
At 1 o'clock in the evening, however, it was apparent that they were mistaken, and as the mail came pouring in the difference between their estimate and the actual figures grew larger.

At 7 o'clock there were still 14,000 unopened letters, and three more mails arrived between the time of the tabulation and the close of business at midnight.

In addition to the thousands of taxpayers who paid in person the federal building, $2,800 returns with payments were received by mail and listed between 9 o'clock yesterday morning and 1 o'clock last evening. More than $3,000,000 was paid and deposited during the day.

According to Mrs. Reinecke, employees of the internal revenue department established a record in the expedition with which returns were handled. Although the law does not provide overtime pay—nor even "supper money"—the entire force has been constantly on duty from 9 o'clock in the morning until midnight each day for the last week.

PROSPERITY IS SEEN
Washington, D. C., March 15.—(Special.)—Visible evidence of the revival of business and the return of prosperity will be contained in the income tax returns for 1922, completed today, according to estimates of the treasury department.

Conservative estimates prepared by the treasury department indicate that the returns which should be filed will approximate $400,000,000, or about $7,000,000 more than for the first quarter of last year. Later information from the large financial centers, New York, Chicago, Boston, and Philadelphia, indicated that this estimate may be exceeded greatly.

The indications now would appear to be that the collections for the entire year 1922, based on business done in 1921, will approximate and probably exceed $1,500,000,000.

The day's reports are taken to mean that prosperity is more generally distributed, earning power has increased, industry is more prosperous, and that on the whole the prospect for the business future is rosy.

The treasury department is anticipating continued returns from the settlement of back tax claims growing out of the war period. Settlement of these claims, it is expected, will continue to net the government about $20,000,000 a month.

NEW YORK BREAKS RECORD.
New York, March 15.—(Special.)—Despite the elimination of excess profits taxes and the radical reduction of surtax rates, federal income taxes collected in the Manhattan collection district up to midnight exceeded by more than 100 percent the corresponding record a year ago.

The total was $46,164,515. The receipts for the corresponding period in 1921 totaled $14,353,544.

Collector F. K. Bowers attributed the increase to a material improvement in business conditions. The number of returns received, it was predicted, would exceed those of last year, and the total would be $50,000,000.

LEARNS TO HEAR BY FINGER TIPS IN EXPERIMENT

Hearing only with the palm of his hand, John Crane, a sophomore at Northwestern university, has acquired a vocabulary of twenty-three words since November and now can receive sentences composed of any words in his limited vocabulary.

Development of this ability to hear with the hand has come through a series of experiments in atmospheric vibration by George Crane, a graduate student and brother of John, working under the direction of Prof. Robert H. Gault, professor of psychology. The tests may be of great practical value in the teaching of deaf children and may eventually lead to the teaching of deaf-mutes to talk, Prof. Gault says.

The experiments also tend to prove that Willett Huggins, the famous deaf girl of Janesville, Wis., actually hears with her finger tips. The case of the Huggins girl had caused a controversy in scientific circles, investigators differing regarding her powers after repeated experiments.

For his experiments Prof. Gault used a thirty foot speaking tube, the ends of which are separated by two walls and a soundproof box was made, preventing the voice of the sender from reaching the receiver, whose ears are stuffed with putty and whose head is bandaged as a further precaution. The receiver's hand is placed inside the box.

The vocabulary includes the words: Ray, bear, go, did, not, fight, excuse, territory, you, transport, see, forget, dog, will, excite, professor, control, Howard, decide, desire, to, hunting, and therefore.

Crane has made such progress that he is now able to distinguish the words "America," "Old Black Joe," "Dixie," and "There's a Long, Long Trail."

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH OVER NIAGARA FALLS

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 15.—A woman leaped into the river about thirty feet above the brink of the American Falls today and was swept to death over the outcrop. She was apparently about 25 years old and well dressed. She had engaged an automobile to make a tour of the points of interest. In the car she left a small handbag containing $15 in money, a railroad check issued at Albany, and a string of beads.

"One bath a week and a shave every two weeks" is to be the lot of Evanston residents unless a bond issue is voted to provide for a larger water supply, the present facilities being rapidly outstripped by the growth of the city, they were told by Mayor Harry P. Pearsons at a meeting at the North End Men's club last night.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON A SUICIDE

Save Roving Black Sheep from Potter's Field.

A key to a room in a West Madison street lodging house found yesterday on the body of a suicide prevented a burial in the potter's field and led to the body's partial identification as that of the black sheep son of one of the wealthiest men in the south.

As a result the police last night were in communication with the family of the late David R. Burgess of Mobile, Ala., who left a million in his will and had been prominent in society and politics south of the Mason and Dixon line. They are holding the body, which is believed to be that of Jarvis Turner Burgess, the elder Burgess' outcast son and erstwhile "remittance man."

Both Wrist Slashed.
The body was found lying in a lot at Des Plaines and Madison streets. The arteries of both wrists had been severed by deep slashes. No mark or identification was found on the clothing. All that was in the pockets of the well worn clothes was a key to a room in the "Workman's Palace" at 625 West Madison street.

Sergis Walsh and Gannon of the Des Plaines street station went there to make a perfunctory inquiry. There they found Louis Perry, who had been relating to other inmates of the lodging house how a man whom he didn't know had entrusted him with papers. Perry was questioned and then taken to the Des Plaines street station.

In Perry's pocket were found a copy of the will of David R. Burgess and other papers which seemed to establish the identity of the suicide as Burgess' outcast son.

Never Saw Man Before.
"A man I never saw before handed me these," Perry said, "and told me he was going to kill himself." Perry viewed the body at the county morgue and identified it as that of the man from whom he had received the documents.

From Mobile dispatches last night it was learned that Jarvis Turner Burgess had a turbulent career. He was a wayward boy, it is said, who frequently lashed the wounds established by his parent, with the result that he was sent to the Philippine islands about fifteen years ago. He remained there a short time, and returning to this country became involved in a serious scrape. Ever since he has alternately maintained his residence in Philadelphia, Pa., and this city, roving much of the time.

The father of the man who is supposed to have been the suicide died in 1919, leaving an estate of nearly a million dollars. He cut his son off with $50 a month allowance.

SAYS SALT WATER RUINS MEXICAN OIL INVESTMENTS

New York, March 15.—(Special.)—A. C. Bedford, chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, believes salt water has invaded the Mexican oil fields to such an extent American oil companies face a collective loss of at least half their original $500,000,000 investment.

These views are set forth in an article by him in Foreign Affairs, released for publication tomorrow. In it he indorses the most pessimistic reports that have come from Tampico. Not only will American companies lose a huge sum on their investment, he says, but America will face a shortage if it cannot replace its Mexican supply with oil from other fields.

Without the 130,000,000 barrels imported from Mexico in 1922, he continues, this country would not have been able to maintain a normal reserve supply.

COPPER DIVES IN, NABS 5 STEALING SWIM AT SCHOOL

His duty forced Officer Emmett Merts to take a sportive plunge last night when a call came from W. E. Tower, principal of the night school at Englewood High school, saying that strange noises were coming from the swimming tank.

Officer Merts responded, and, climbing through a window, he found five young men, very much in negligence, paddling around in the dark. Four came out, but one told the policeman to come and get him. He did.

The bathers were returned to their parents, charged with stealing a swim.

GRILL KIN OF MISSING GIRL IN POPP CASE

Mother Tells of the Banker's Visits.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES.
(Pictures on back page.)

Claire Hellmann, the masseuse sweetheart of Fred W. Popp, whose sudden flight after the banker's suicide has caused dark suspicions to be directed against her brunette curls, is the victim of malicious gossip, according to her mother and sister, Mrs. Lillian M. Hellmann and Mrs. Catherine Mathias, 2403 North Kedzie boulevard.

The women were called in on forth with subpoenas late last night and questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Robert E. McMillan.

Claire, it seems, is "just a home girl."

Says Daughter Worked.
Denying that her daughter ever had loved a brighter light than the delicate rose shade above her sewing machine, Mrs. Hellmann told how the girl had even given up her idea of becoming a manicure because it wasn't up to her "class."

Claire, however, did work up to the day of her disappearance. Quizzed as to the name of the store in which she was employed, the mother "didn't remember."

Both the mother and daughter insist that, from their knowledge, the friendship of June Bacon, the "artistic blonde," with the banker, was just as platonic as that of Claire. At the same time they explain Miss Hellmann's mysterious disappearance and hiding by saying:

"Claire probably knew that any of June's friends would get some undesirable publicity, because of Miss Bacon's association with Mr. Popp."

"June Just a Friend."
Pressed further, they repeat that June was "just a friend" of Mr. Popp. "My daughter," and Mrs. Hellmann tightens her lips, "was never a good friend of June's. She hardly knew her in South Bend. Not that I ever heard or saw anything, but well, you know how a mother feels, and I was never anxious for Claire to run around with her."

Mrs. Hellmann said she had come to Chicago a year ago last October at the solicitation of Claire. The two of them went at once to the Kedzie avenue apartment, owned by Dr. O. W. Lewke, Dr. Lewke, formerly chief physician for Coroners Trager and Hoffman, denied last night to Assistant State's Attorney McMillan that Popp had recommended these tenants or had signed the lease.

Refuses to Reveal Income.
"How much rent do you pay a month?" Mrs. Hellmann was asked. "4110."

"What is the source of your income?"

"I pay all the bills. I am comfortably fixed. I think it is a personal question and I prefer not to tell."

"Did you ever see Mr. Popp?" the mother was asked.

Mrs. Hellmann drew her heavy seal wrap nervously about her shoulders and twirled her large bead bag as she replied:

"Why, yes; I was introduced to him by Claire, I believe; I am not sure."

"Did he ever call at your apartment?"

"Yes, twice."

"What for?"

"He came to see me and advise me about some investments in real estate."

"What are they, specifically?"

"I'd rather not say."

Tells of Bungalow Visit.
Mrs. Mathias, who makes her home at Kedzie boulevard during the absence of her husband, traveling salesman, recalled "just one visit" to the bungalow which June characterized as "merely a comfortable place for an artistic working girl to live."

"Mother and Claire and I went there to a dinner party."

"But we went home early," interrupted the mother, as she bore out her previous statement that Claire kept such good hours.

Quizzed about Claire's disappearance the day after the president of the Logan Square Trust and Savings bank was found dead, with a bullet through his temple, the women were vague, but determined to keep their mouths shut.

Claire's Flight Unexplained.
It was early Saturday morning, they recalled, and they saw many of Claire's clothes on her bed. And the next minute, or a few minutes later, or perhaps an hour or two, they could not recall, the old Mrs. Hellmann girl had gone.

Nobody saw her, they told the police.

Model Found Dead in Studio; Hunt Two Men

New York, March 15.—(Special.)—Miss Dorothy King, a blonde artist's model described as extremely beautiful, was found dead in bed in her small apartment at 144 West 57th street, near Carnegie hall, tonight.

The odor of chloroform revealed how the girl had met death. A two ounce bottle lay empty upon the floor. But there was no handkerchief, towel, sponge, or cloth which might have been used in self-inflicting death with the chloroform.

Discount Suicide Theory.
The theory of suicide was not supported by the medical examiner, who found the cramped position of the body and the absence of any chloroform swab, indicated she did not kill herself. An autopsy tomorrow may disclose facts upon which to found a definite decision.

A colored maid said the condition of the room was just as she found it when she arrived for her day's work. No furniture was upset, no drawers had been ransacked. There was no proof of burglary, although no jewels were found.

Miss King was known to have had two diamond rings, a set of diamond earrings, and a hairbrush.

Hunt Two Missing Men.
The detectives, after several hours on the case, were not ready to hazard an opinion as to whether it was a case of suicide or murder. Two men who returned to the apartment with Miss King after midnight are being hunted.

The elevator operator in the building recalls taking the trio up to the fifth floor. All were in evening dress. One of the two men came down later. The elevator boy does not remember seeing the second man emerge.

The police hope to get some tangible lead through examination of the girl's safety deposit box tomorrow.

Mother, Mrs. Anna Kierman, who lived further uptown, also will be asked to aid in the investigation.

MORE BUILDING TRADE UNIONS GET PAY BOOSTS

Five more building trades unions have followed the lead of the bricklayers and signed new agreements with the Associated Builders of Chicago at increased rates of pay, it was announced yesterday. The bricklayers' new scale is $1.25 and the plasterers are to receive the same pay, an increase of 15 cents an hour.

The plumbers, structural iron workers, steamfitters, and carpenters announced they have agreed on $1.25 an hour. It was reported the steamfitters have agreed on a wage of $1.02 1/2.

ORANGE LODGES DON'T WANT KING TO CALL ON POPE

Winnipeg, March 15.—The Grand Orange lodge of Manitoba, at its fifty-first annual session today, adopted a resolution setting forth that King George had been ill advised if he seriously considered calling on Pope Pius on his proposed visit to Italy this spring and protesting against what was termed such unconstitutional action.

Refused to Force Intervention.
From the first, resistance without conversation had been inspired from nationalistic sources. At that time they hoped to force intervention from the United States or England. Today all hope for such intervention has fled and it is deemed certain here that there can be no solution except by direct conversations between the principals.

Whether the negotiations will lead to any solution is highly problematical. The Germans still maintain that Herr Bergmann's figures represent the utmost Germany could pay before the occupation of the Ruhr; and that her capacity to pay has greatly been crippled since the occupation.

However, they have advanced somewhat toward a possible settlement if the resume of Herr Rosenberg's speech can be trusted—that they are readiness to accept any figure which a disinterested investigating committee might name.

Collapse of Industries.
The danger signal pointing to a collapse of German industry came yesterday morning from Cassel, when it was learned that there or elsewhere immediate negotiations would save these plants from enforced idleness and prevent widespread unemployment.

A reorganization of German finances, making possible the funding on reparations claims on a firm basis, will be a task of the greatest importance, and one that requires the most careful and stable management of the budget.

In some circles it is believed possible that Germany may call in an international committee to control finances, reorganize the budget and stabilize the mark on the basis of the experts' report of Nov. 17, before they are asked to do so by the allies.

Isolated Policy Hard to Accept.
The acceptance of a detailed financial policy would be difficult for any government, while a voluntary admission of a financial system, with no reason to suspect it, would not surprise any German government.

German is balanced over the brink of financial disaster.

FOSTER CALLED EVANGELIST OF HATE, VIOLENCE

Testimony Begins in Reds'
Trial in Michigan.

St. Joseph, Mich., March 15.—(By The Associated Press.)—William Z. Foster, charged with charges of criminal syndicalism, got underway today in his testimony in the trial of the state's first witness and described how he had a posse of twenty deputies, four federal agents, and a number of state constabulary raised the communist convention held near here August.

The jury was completed early this afternoon, with one woman and eleven men seated to try Foster, first of the twenty-six persons alleged to have attended the convention, to go on trial. None of the jurors are far from the scene, and a crossing watchman, and the health a housewife.

Summarizes the Charges.
G. L. Smith, assistant attorney general of Michigan, in his opening statement, declared the state would show that Foster had organized, led, and was a member, and "voluntarily assembled" with the communist party, which taught and advocated the doctrine of "crime, sabotage, violence, and other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform."

The evidence will show, he said, that Foster was a paid organizer and official of the organization, and editor of the "Labor Herald of Chicago, official publication of the Trade Union Education League, an off-shot of the communist party."

Harris Allusion Brings Clash.
Mr. Smith and Frank P. Walsh of New York, chief of counsel for Foster, clashed when the assistant attorney general declared the evidence would show that the Herrin (Ill.) mine war, in which more than twenty persons were killed, had been lauded at the convention as a "valiant defense," and an official of the communist party attending the convention had declared the workers throughout the country must "take their guns and close down the coal mines and paralyze the state machinery by military action."

Mr. Walsh objected to the Herrin allusion on the ground that the only completed case growing out of the Herrin affair had resulted in "acquittal" of the defendants.
Judge Charles White ruled that as the attorney general said he had the documents to support his statements, it was admissible.

Mr. Walsh, in his opening statement, said the defense would endeavor to show that Foster attended the convention as a fraternal delegate and did not hold a card or pay dues to the communist party.

He described the organization of the party in 1919 and the federal raids on its members on Jan. 7, 1920. The evidence, he said, would show that federal secret agents in the party's ranks called meetings for that day, and that when the members had assembled in response to the call, they were raided and some 6,000 arrested, few of whom were ever brought to trial.

The raids, he said, drove the party underground, but that the Bridgman convention was called by the advocates of legality for the express purpose of voting on a resolution to come out into the open again as a legal group.

Relies on Seized Papers.
Mr. Smith, elaborating his statement, declared the prosecution is not aimed at the beliefs of Foster, at organized labor, or at Foster as a "labor agitator," but that it is aimed at the advocacy of the doctrine "that the government of the state of Michigan and the government of the United States shall be forcibly overthrown by the workers by means of armed insurrection and civil war and supplanted by a form of government known as the dictatorship of the proletariat.

FLOOD OF LATE INCOME RETURNS SWAMP U. S. WORKERS

"We will show to you," Mr. Smith continued, "that at the time of the raid all the documents and materials used at the convention were buried in two barrels sunk in the ground, that this literature shows the character of the assembly and the purposes of violent and forceful overthrow of all existing forms of state and national government."

Careful to Preserve Secrecy.
"We will show that this meeting was held under the most secret and guarded conditions, that the sessions were held in such a place that detection was almost impossible; to make the secrecy of their convention doubly sure they had lookouts."

"We will show that among the papers seized was a pamphlet entitled 'The Program and Constitution of the Communist Party of America,' which advocates the duty and necessity for the forcible and violent overthrow of all existing state and national governments in the United States and substituting the proletariat."

"We will show that this document teaches the duty of hatred on the part of the working class against the employing class; the necessity of class struggle by the workers against the land owning and employing classes, characterizing this struggle as a political struggle which inevitably develops into civil war; teaches the inevitability of and necessity for violent revolution, and preparing the workers for armed insurrection as the only means of overthrowing the capitalist state."

Sheriff Tells of Raid.
Sheriff Bridgman was still on the stand under direct examination when court adjourned tonight. He told how Jacob Spolansky of the radical bureau of the department of justice in Chicago came to him Aug. 18 of last year and requested his aid. The raid was made the following Tuesday, with Spolansky, Maurice Wolff and Edward Shanahan, federal agents, helping the sheriff's posse.

Sheriff Bridgman described the digging up of the evidence, buried in two barrels specially prepared to protect their contents from moisture. The evidence was brought into court and piled up before the jury.

Besides the seventy-six document files in which the delegates kept their papers, there were piles of printed documents, one or two leather brief cases, had a dozen typewriters, and two duplicating machines.

Completion of the jury this afternoon was not accomplished until both sides had exhausted all their peremptory challenges. The defense made final effort to dismiss the last juror chosen, Patsy T. Healey, a farmer.

She's the boss. Mrs. George W. Reinecke, assistant to John C. Cannon, collector of internal revenue, has charge of the income tax work. Mr. Cannon is ill.

SUES TO DIVORCE $100,000 A YEAR BANK ATTORNEY

Theodore Stillman Chapman, general counsel for the Harris Trust and Savings bank, nationally known financial authority and prominent clubman with a reputed $100,000 yearly income, was sued for divorce yesterday by Mrs. Luella Benson Chapman of the Parkway hotel.

The bill, filed by Attorney Charles E. Erbstein in the Superior court, charges desertion in October, 1920, Chapman, member of the Union League and South Shore Country club, as well as the Chicago Athletic association, is in New York on business.

Mrs. Chapman, soon after her marriage in Berkeley, Cal., on Nov. 15, 1917, opened an exclusive linen shop, and this entry into "trade" is said to have caused the first discord between the couple.

ASK ENGINEERS ACCOUNTING FOR SCHOOL MILLIONS

A resolution calling upon the 350 engineers of the Chicago schools to submit to the board of education an itemized accounting for the expenditure of the $2,000,000 annually paid them will be presented to the school trustees at their next meeting.

The resolution has been prepared by Hart Hanson, chairman of the finance committee, he announced yesterday, and it carries a provision that the engineers shall be dismissed if they fail to comply.

"I am told some of these men, under the contract system, hire their work done by cheap labor, and clear much as $25,000 a year net," Hanson said.

"This certainly will call for a vote of the engineers, who are members of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers," their president, Charles E. Driscoll, said yesterday.

WOMAN LAWYER WINS; GIRL FREED IN MURDER CASE

Innkeeper a Suicide, N. Y. Jury Finds.

Minneapolis, N. Y., March 15.—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Billie) Wells, tried for the murder of Capt. James M. Pettit, Massapequa inn keeper, was acquitted tonight by a jury of men.

The verdict, returned by a jury selected because of its professed ability to try the case on its merits, unhampered by the defendant's sex, was a victory for two women—Mrs. Wells and her attorney, Miss Helen McCormick, former assistant prosecutor for King's county. The jury was out about two hours.

Mrs. Wells denied on the witness stand that she had killed Pettit or threatened his life. She insisted she had no connection whatever with his death.

Married Three Times.
In telling the story of her life earlier in the day Mrs. Wells recounted three marriages, her unhappiness, an attempt at suicide, and her stay under Pettit's roof as hostess of the tavern.

Mrs. Wells testified that on Christmas eve, 1921, Pettit gave her "the most awful black eye" she ever had. Last New Year's eve, she said, Pettit pulled her upstairs, threw her to the floor, and gave her another black eye, but was sorry the next day.

Several days before the shooting Pettit told her, she said, that he was unable to pay his bills and that he was going to "end it all."

Pettit Saw Lions.
Once, while shaving, Pettit imagined he saw lions on the bed and threw ginger ale bottles at them, the defendant testified.

Mrs. Wells said she was introduced to Pettit in a New York police court, where she had gone to identify a man who had stolen jewelry from her. She had saved about $7,000 since Wells left her, she continued, and maintained an apartment in Manhattan. Pettit stayed there three days. In a separate room, he induced her to go to Massapequa inn, and introduced her to his friends as "Mrs. Pettit."

After the report of the grand jury had been made known, Capt. J. K. Skip with, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Klan, was named as defendant in a $100,000 slander suit filed in the Superior court yesterday by J. W. Brooks, attorney and partner in the Brooks company, undertakers.

The suit is based on the "exposure" of Attorney Brooks as a Klansman in a recent issue of Tolerance, although, according to the declaration, Brooks has been a lifelong Catholic and "naturally hostile to the Klan's purposes, doctrines, practices and activities."

As a result of the publication, Brooks declares that practically all of his clients have deserted him, friends and members of his parish church avoid him and the undertaking business is nearly ruined.

HOODED CRIMES LEFT UNPUNISHED BY BASTROP JURY

Fails to Find Indictments;
Coco May Try New Plan.

Bastrop, La., March 15.—No indictments were returned by the Morehouse parish grand jury in connection with the slaying of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richards on Aug. 24 last and various hooded band activities which the jury has been investigating for the last ten days. The jury's report was given to District Judge Fred Odum late today.

In its report the grand jury referred to the masked band case as "the deplorable crime of Aug. 24," and stated that while it had gone thoroughly into the affair it could find no evidence that would warrant the indictment of any individual.

Attorney General Coco and two of his assistants left here before the grand jury made its report. Mr. Coco stated early today that in event no indictments were returned he would file bills of information against certain persons named at the opening hearing here in January as having participated in mob activities. He did not state, however, whether this action would be taken immediately.

125 Witnesses Heard.
Numerous other crimes charged to hooded bands were not mentioned in the grand jury report. More than 125 witnesses were heard by the jury during the ten days now in session.

Judge Odum made no comment on the report. He dismissed the jury after saying they had been in session a long time and he knew it more or less of a hardship, but it was the duty some one had to perform.

This was the third session of the grand jury since the first of the hooded band kidnappings in Morehouse parish, none of them finding indictments as a result of the crimes charged to them.

RAZE MELLOWED CHARLEVOIX FOR BUSINESS BLOCK

Rush St. Patriarch of Flats to Vanish.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago's patriarch of de luxe apartment buildings, the famous old Marquette-Charlevoix, at the northeast corner of Rush and Ohio streets, directly across from the Virginia hotel, is at last to go the way all good flat buildings go sooner or later—into the hands of wreckers.

Joseph Defrees, a member of the law firm of Defrees, Buckingham & Eaton, owner of the building, has had plans drawn by Rapp & Rapp for a six business building, to be leased to and occupied by one concern, the name to be announced later.

The Marquette-Charlevoix, the city's first "ultra" apartment building, with the lofty ceilings and spacious rooms of forty years ago, has housed some of Chicago's best known families.

Home of Harrisons for Years.
One of the distinguished tenants was Carter H. Harrison, second, who lived there with his family for twenty-five years.

Baron Schlippenbach, Russian consul in Chicago back in the days when rubles were real money and czars ruled Muscovy, was another distinguished tenant for several years. James Walsh, capitalist and railroad leader, lived there, as did Lloyd J. Smith and Lucian Harding, a cousin of the President. Dr. W. H. Allport has resided here in January as having participated in mob activities. He did not state, however, whether this action would be taken immediately.

Twenty Families Lose Leases.
The present twenty families in the building first heard of their impending removal from the historic structure through notices received yesterday from Winston & Co., agents of the building, that leases expiring shortly would not be renewed.

Work will start on the new structure early in the summer. It will cover the entire lot, fronting 100 feet on Ohio and 142 feet on Rush street. Mr. Defrees, the owner, is also owner of the Windermere hotel and the new annex, now almost completed.

CAR MEN SWITCH BACK FROM 1919 RIDE WITH C. O. P.

Democrat Edge Is Shown in Tribune Poll.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Four years ago more than half the street car employees were believed to have voted for Mayor Thompson. The poll of THE TRIBUNE then so indicated. The mayor was credited with settling one street car strike with a wage boost during his first administration.

THE TRIBUNE's poll of the present status of the pending campaign indicates that approximately two-thirds of the car men are for Dever, the Democratic candidate. However, it is hazardous to take this poll as indicative of the attitude of labor on the majority question, because another poll in the process of tabulation shows a much different result. Street car and elevated employees have a special interest in a majority election because of the issue regarding municipalization of local transportation lines.

Poll Dever Well in Lead.

The results of the poll of 2,500 surface trolley men, the figures of previous days and the totals to date, are as follows:

Candidate	Today's Poll	Previous Poll	Total
Dever, Dem.	1,459	7,795	9,254
Lueder, Rep.	472	7,483	7,955
Cumulative	289	803	1,092

Yesterday Dever had 47 per cent of the total votes then counted, today 50 per cent. His surface lead of 1,259 votes in the total to date was run up today because too many votes proportionately were obtained from the street car men. This is explained because of the large number of inquiries on how to interpret the figures in THE TRIBUNE's poll.

An illustration will present several angles of proportion more plainly. Assume there are 20,000 colored voters, 75 per cent of whom are for Lueder, and the canvassers bring in 1,500 ballots. Then assume there are 90,000 Polish voters, of which 75 per cent are for Dever, and the canvassers are able to collect only 500 ballots.

Shows Effect of Disproportion.

The results in the poll would be: For the colored vote, 400 for Dever and 1,100 for Lueder; and for the Polish vote, 600 for Dever and 400 for Lueder. Or, on the two polls, 1,000 for Dever and 1,400 for Lueder.

This is just a case. If 1,600 ballots are a gauge of sentiment among 20,000 colored voters there should be 4,800 votes to size up 90,000 Polish voters, so that the canvass of the Polish voters would then show 3,600 for Dever and 1,200 for Lueder. This combined with the colored poll would give Dever 4,800 votes and Lueder 1,200.

That is the correct reasoning in analyzing the poll in which so many of the street car men are generally considered "static" under normal conditions—support of Mayor Thompson being exception.

On March 11, 12, and 14, during the last majority campaign, THE TRIBUNE polled 711 street car men. This time 2,500 were canvassed. The two may be contrasted as follows:

Candidate	1919	1923
Thompson, R.	308	1,459
Lueder, D.	187	472
Fitzpatrick, L.	108	289
Byrne, Ind.	48	—

Totals 711 Total 2,500

New Poll at Car Barns.

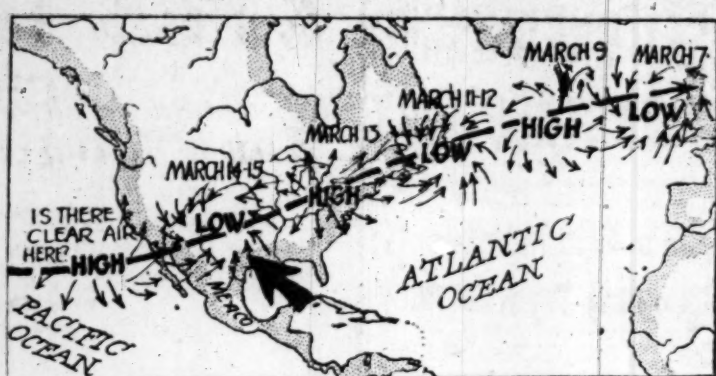

The votes obtained by each candidate at the car barns canvassed, this campaign, are as follows:

Candidate	Dever	Lueder	Cumulative
Car barns	232	73	305
Other and Van Buren	222	94	316
Clark and North	197	50	247
Clark and Dever	188	60	248
Clark and Cottage Grove	168	37	205
Lincoln and Sheffield	157	38	195
Clark and Dever	138	30	168

Totals, all barns, 1,449 472 2,000

In the tabulation of the Polish vote several days ago a canvass was erroneously credited to the Polish National Alliance when it should have been of another Polish organization.

WEEK'S STORM PATH

BY SELBY MAXWELL.

The map shows the location of the path that the severe wind and snow and rain storms of the last week have followed. They all appear to be of one family, and enter this country over Mexico. Storms are mostly influenced by the barometer. The whirling of wind shown on the map indicate regions of high and low barometric pressure. Highs are usually associated with clear weather, and lows with storms. The low responsible for yesterday's precipitation is indicated by a heavy arrow.

prosecutor. Nobody heard her go. Nobody in the apartment has heard from her or of her. But the mother of the girl who "has never been away from home before" is sure she is safe, and hints that she may be on her way to a sister, Mrs. Odis Oliver, in Los Angeles.

After being questioned the two women were permitted to return home. They promised to communicate with officials as soon as they received any information about Claire.

U. S. TRACES POPP GIFTS

Federal authorities yesterday joined with county officials in delving into the incomes of Miss June Bacon and Miss Claire Hellmann derived from Fred W. Popp's middle-life ventures in love.

E. E. Alden, Internal revenue agent for the Chicago district, directed the attention of his subordinates to the bungalow with the "cooling parlor," a gift to Miss Bacon by the president of the Logan Square bank, who killed himself a week ago today. Also he ordered an investigation of other real estate and cash gifts to the two midwives from South Bend, Ind., who were able to look upon the bank president as a conquest.

"We are only interested in collecting the income taxes," Alden said, "and if women's incomes from Mr. Popp were as reported, taxes should have been paid on them. If not, there may be a penalty."

Assistant State's Attorneys George E. Gorman and Robert E. McMillan, who have charge of the county's investigation, were unable to accomplish much in the task of tracing the bank's money in each of the avenues in which it was squandered. They did not hear from Miss Hellmann; Miss Bacon sent a doctor's certificate of illness in lieu of answering the subpoena, and the

TOWN DESTROYED, MANY INJURED BY WINDSTORM

Crenshaw, Miss., March 15.—(Special.)—One man was probably fatally hurt, several persons are believed dead, more than a score were injured, and the little town of Savage, a few miles north of here, was destroyed for the second time in two months, as a result of a cyclone which swept this section tonight. The storm headed southeast and several persons were reported injured in the country south and west of Lambert.

About twenty-five persons came into Crenshaw tonight and told of buildings being blown down, homes wrecked, and men and women being thrown into Coldwater river by the wind. All telephone lines are down in that section and almost every point north of here is cut off from telephone communication with Memphis.

MANY CITIES HIT

BY SELBY MAXWELL.

The wind and rain storms which have swept the middle west in succession during the last week, all appear to have been of the same family. They all entered the southwest from Mexico, they all moved across the United States toward the northeast, each one almost in its predecessor's track, they all had deep funnel-like barometric low pressure areas in their centers, and all so far have been of more than usual violence.

Chicago was a little out of the path of the heaviest part of the storm last night and up to midnight only rain had fallen. But places west and south reported deep drifts, stalled cars, and storm damage.

In the Missouri valley the snow was heavier, but the cold last night was not so intense. At Omaha nineteen inches of snow fell yesterday, setting a storm record for that place and closing the schools. There was wet snow at Sioux City, then a drop in temperature, after which the drifts piled up. Nineteen inches of snow fell in Council Bluffs.

At Dixon, Ill., there was eighteen inches of snow on the level, heavy enough to carry down wires and halt interurban service. At Sterling the snow made the streets impassable for fire fighting apparatus.

Ex-Bull Mooser Adds

BY PARKE BROWN.

The first Republican "hot" at J. William E. Dever, Democratic majority nominee, were fired yesterday by Thomas Knight, former president of Hamilton club, president of "Progressive" back in the days of the Bull Mooser. His remarks, which were made for a Republican reunion at Fort (13-0-0) where Arthur Leader, the new, spoke of the same party.

THOMAS E. KNIGHT, the same party, and Judge Bernard P. Harlan and Judge Bernard P. Harlan's opponents in the recent primary election to which primary bidders had been consigned and dwell on the sold party support behind Dever. Knight, after a little reference to that sort of thing, went directly to present battle and sailed into Dever.

Knight Predicts Victory.

"We are all united now," he said, "and a united Republican party behind the Republican candidate in victory."

"There were 305,000 Republican votes cast in the primary," he said, "and the total vote in the election on April 3 probably will be a 700,000. But suppose it is 700,000. The man who gets 375,000 votes is elected and we have 305,000 votes with, and it is a recognized fact the full party strength never cast out in a primary."

"The Democrats have, by their dust in this campaign, exempted everything the Democratic party ever done. They have nominated gentlemen full of years and with honors—and he deserves a them—and now they have been in to stage a debate between dates as though the office of mayor could be carried on by oratory."

"The record of the Democratic dates is a negative one. I hope the Democrats now to put a single constructive measure of all his years in public life to his name is attached."

"We have had one judge in mayor's chair and we know that on the bench after a dozen years a man for the position of new manager of the great corporation of Chicago."

He congratulated Judge Dever his "ripe years" and added that he could serve eight years in the or's office and then retire at an less than Judge Dever's present age. Litchinger, in addition to tend the support of all his friends to Lu

The first Republican vote at Judge Dever's Democratic nomination, which was held yesterday by Thomas D. Knight, former president of the Hamilton club and president of the Progressive club, was the vote of the Bull Moose. His remarks, as chairman, furnished the spice for a Republican reunion at the Fort theater, where Arthur C. Lueder, the nominee, spoke from the same platform.

The candidates' talks concerned the election to which primary bitterness had been kindled and dwelt upon the solid-party support behind Lueder, at Knight, after a little reference to the worst of things, went directly to the present battle and ended into Dever.

Knights Predict Victory.
"We are all united now," he said, "and a united Republican party beat the Republican candidate means victory."

"There were 205,000 Republican votes cast in the primary," he said, "and the total vote in the election on April 3 probably will be about 720,000. But suppose it is 750,000. The man who gets 375,000 votes will be elected and we have 375,000 to start with, and it is a recognized fact that the full party strength never comes out in a primary."

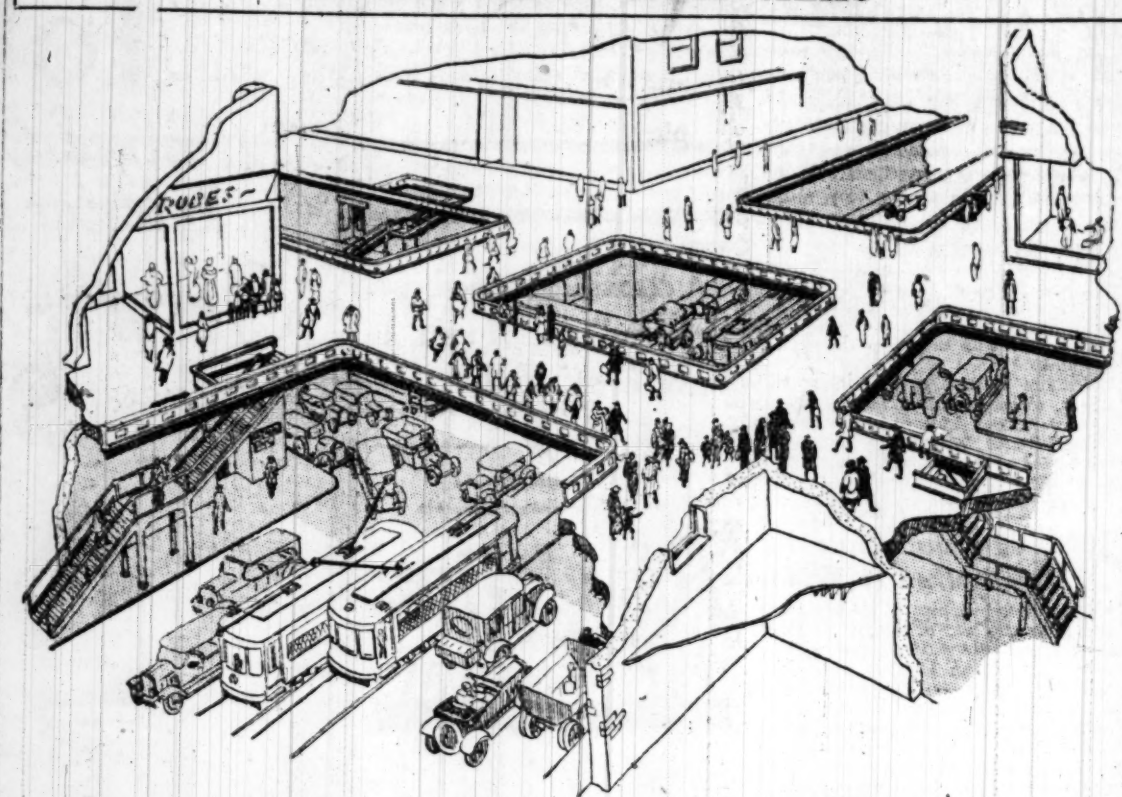

"The Democrats have, by their conduct in this campaign, exemplified everything the Democratic party has ever done. They have nominated a peddler full of years and loaded with honors—and he deserves all of them—and now they have been trying to stage a debate between candidates as though the office of mayor could be carried on by oratory alone."

Denies Constructive Record.
"The record of the Democratic candidate is a negative one," he said, "I challenge the Democrats now to point to a single constructive measure during all his years in public life to which his name is attached."

"We have had one Judge in the mayor's chair and we know that position on the bench after a dozen years unless a man for the position of business manager of the great corporation of Chicago."

He congratulated Judge Dever on his "ripe years" and added that Lueder could serve eight years in the mayor's office and then retire at an age less than Judge Dever's present age. Lueder, in addition to tendering the support of all his friends to Lueder,

EVAN FONTAINE AND HER MOTHER ARE INDICTED

Nyack, N. Y., March 15.—[Special.]—Evan Fontaine and her mother, Mrs. Florence E. Fontaine, were indicted today by the Rockland county grand jury on charges of perjury, the outgrowth of the dancer's recent $1,000,000 suit for breach of promise against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, better known as "Sonny" Whitney.

Miss Fontaine, in annual proceedings in 1918 before Judge Tompkins, testified, and her mother corroborated her, that Adair, at the wedding breakfast, mentioned a former wife. Miss Fontaine said she left Adair immediately and that the marriage was never carried out.

In the trial of her suit against Whitney, the attorneys for the young man brought out hotel records and testimony of bellboys and others showing that Adair and Miss Fontaine were registered as man and wife and did live together.

COURT REBUKES ARTIST FOR HIS GALILEE SATIRE

New York, March 15.—[Special.]—Magistrate Rittenberg today ruled that the picture hung in the exhibit of the Independent artists at the Waldorf Astoria, which shows William Jennings Bryan overturning jars of wine just after Jesus Christ, at the wedding at Cana of Galilee, has performed the miracle of turning water into wine, while Representative Volstead and Supt. Anderson of the New York Anti-Saloon league look on approvingly, "outrages all sense of public decency among Christians and non-Christians alike."

In holding Abraham S. Baylson, secretary of the artists, for trial before the court of special sessions, the magistrate said that if the picture in the painting were performed today it would be a violation of the Volstead act.

"The picture shows Volstead apparently placing Christ under arrest and holding him up to scorn for his action in making wine out of water. If such a miracle were performed now it certainly would be a violation of the Volstead law," he continued.

The magistrate, in a written opinion, also urged that action be taken against J. Francis Kaufman, the artist. The picture was hung Feb. 25 in the hotel.

DEVER LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN WITH FOUR ADDRESSES

Objects to "Nice Lines" Drawn in Battle.

William E. Dever, addressing four meetings last night opened his speaking campaign as Democratic candidate for mayor of Chicago.

Judge Dever's first big guns were fired in bombardment of Republican strongholds of the south side. Rain and fog notwithstanding, large audiences heard the speakers at each of the four halls and they were vociferous in their reception.

Draws Line for Voters.
Addressing himself only briefly to general issues and to what are conceded to be problems that will confront the next mayor, the Democratic candidate in each instance concentrated on one point—an appeal to voters to consider him not as "one of two of the finest candidates" who ever sought suffrage in Chicago on opposite tickets, but as a candidate distinctly different in qualifications from his Republican opponent, Arthur C. Lueder.

"Accepting editorials and cartoons of 'The Tribune' and 'The Daily News,'" Judge Dever said, "one might well conclude that Mr. Lueder and I are as near alike as two men could be—that we were cast in the same mould."

"I have no complaint to make against the newspapers. They have always treated me generously and they are doing so this spring. I don't believe, however, they have grasped the significance of the point I am making."

Calls for Searchlight.
"The gentleman who opposes me and I are not at all alike—two men could not be more different. We are unlike in a thousand respects. What I ask is that the searchlight be turned on both of us and that we be judged in that light."

"I resent being hooked up in double harness with the Republican candidate. It is clearly a smooth effort to preserve party lines. We, on the other hand, are trying to take partisanship out of this campaign. If I am worthy of support at all, I am worthy of the support of Democrats and Republicans alike."

Favors Drive on Vice.
Judge Dever reaffirmed his declarations for municipally owned and operated traction lines, a house cleaning of the city hall and the board of education, and a drive against vice.

The initial Dever meetings, in the order indicated, were at 43rd and State streets, where the colored vote pre-

POLITICAL NOTES

Dever meetings will be held tonight at the Nixon school, Keeler and Dickens avenues, at the Myrtle Masonic temple, 4240 Irving Park boulevard, and at Klaproth's hall, Irving Park boulevard and Bernard street.

The Hamilton club will give a luncheon and reception to Arthur C. Lueder, John V. Healy and William H. Cruden at noon today. The club's slogan is "Hamilton club, 5,000 strong for Lueder."

Jacob M. Dickinson, a Democrat who served as secretary of war in President Taft's cabinet, issued a statement yesterday warmly endorsing Judge Dever for mayor.

The German-American Republican Central Lueder for Mayor club has opened headquarters at 8 South Dearborn street. The officers include E. F. Rennaeker, president; William Storm, H. B. Bruns, George K. Schmidt, and Victor Sarnor.

dominate; Boulevard hall, 55th and Halsted streets, sixteenth ward; Ray school auditorium, fifth ward, 56th street and Kimbark avenue, and the Forum, Third ward, 43d street and Calumet avenue.

Earlier in the evening the Democratic choice for mayor attended at the Sold Gardens a banquet at which Ald. Oscar Nelson was the chief guest.

Others Speak at Meetings.
Other candidates and campaign speakers addressed the several meetings. Among the latter, speaking at one or another of the halls, were Prof. Charles E. Merriam, former alderman and one time candidate for mayor of Chicago; Attorney Frank Comerford, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Edward J. Fleming, Representative Michael L. Igoe, Judge Henry Horner, Francis S. Busch, Dr. James Whitney Hall, and William L. O'Connell.

Prof. Merriam, emphasizing Judge Dever's point as to the differing qualifications of the majority candidates, cited the Democratic standard bearer's twenty-one years of public service, challenged Mr. Lueder's stand on the traction question as vague, and questioned the character of some of the men associated with him in this campaign—notably Corporation Counsel Samuel Eitelson, Dr. W. H. Fold, public service commissioner, and Andrew Metzger, under indictment in connection with the school board case.

'PAY ROLL BANDIT' CHARGE CAUSES SPLIT IN HOUSE

Solid Party Action Seen at Springfield.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.
Springfield, Ill., March 15.—(Special.)—State pay rolls were under fire in the house of representatives again today. With the house going at top speed in the advancement of bills preparatory to adjournment for the week, Minority Leader Devine led his Democratic cohorts in another onslaught against the "pay roll bandits," whose treasury raids, Mr. Devine said, are being concealed by State Auditor Andrew Russell.

The storm broke when the Barber bill requiring the state auditor to make annual reports of all pay rolls and other expenditures was called up for third reading. The measure was introduced by Representative Barber (Dem., Sangamon), as a result of Mr. Russell's continued refusal to disclose any information regarding any state pay roll.

Fails to Advance Bill.
The minority leader, backed by the solid support of the thirty-four Democrats who remained for the session today, made a strenuous but futile effort to advance the bill. The measure was referred to the appropriations committee by the solid vote of sixty-seven Republicans.

"I am not against this bill in principle," said Representative Smolchal (Rep., Chicago), "and, as chairman of the appropriations committee, I have tried always to get any pay roll the committee wanted. When the bill was considered and recommended by the efficiency and economy committee, Mr. Russell was not notified or given a chance to appear before the committee. This bill involves an expenditure of money for printing and publication, probably $100,000. Let's send it to the appropriations committee and find out what the cost will be."

Attacks State Auditor.
"I don't care what it will cost, it will be worth it," Mr. Devine said. "The state auditor has openly defied the law, and he has been pretty brazen about it. He is getting himself up as the judge of what is a legitimate or official purpose in seeking this pay roll information."

"We want to know where the money goes. Nobody knows now. These pay roll bandits are getting money they don't work for."

With the pay roll scrap over and the Barber bill sent back to committee the house, by a vote of 90 to 0, passed the measure bill reappropriating the remaining $200,000,000 in the $400,000,000 road bond fund. The bill was sent to Gov. Small for signature.

Women's Eight Hour Bill.
The women's eight hour bill and the anti-Ku Klux Klan bill were advanced to second reading.

The Then bill permitting veniemen to select the terms of court at which it would be most convenient, for them to serve on juries was advanced to the order of passage, along with the Curran bill increasing the salaries of clerks and bailiffs of the Municipal court of Chicago.

The house adopted a joint resolution passed by the senate protesting against change in location or setting of the Gen. John A. Logan statue in Grant park, Chicago.

CO-OP MARKETING BILL HITS A SNAG IN STATE SENATE

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Springfield, Ill., March 15.—(Special.)—The prelude to a lively battle in the legislature over the cooperative marketing act, which would permit farmers to pool and sell their products without fear of being held for price fixing and restraint of trade, came in the senate today when this bill was blocked from being advanced to third reading, and notice of amendments was served.

The bill, fathered by the committee on agriculture and introduced by Senator Simon E. Lantz (Rep., Woodford), author of the anti-board of trade bills in the last session, came out of committee inconspicuously and just as quietly as it was being promoted to third reading today, past the amendment stage, when Senator John Dalley (Rep., Peoria) took the floor.

Demands More Light.
"Few have thoroughly understood this important measure," he said. "There have been no hearings, no discussion. I feel that cooperative marketing, if presented along same, tried lines, is advisable, but we are not informed as to this bill and I think we should be educated."

"I am informed by former Speaker Charles Adkins that this might repeal the law under which the Farmers' and Grain Dealers' association is operating. There are 615 elevators, with a capital of $10,000,000, and 75,000 stockholders involved, and we want to be sure where they stand. The elevator men are meeting tomorrow on this matter."

Senator Ross (Rep., Cook) also objected to advancing the bill. Senator Swift (Rep., Lake), a farmer, said he had an amendment which would give the people who went into such contracts a chance to get out. Senator Keesinger (Rep., Kane) wanted the bill pushed ahead. He and Senator Lantz both have presented bills affecting the Chicago Board of Trade and this marketing act also is regarded as a move against the board.

Open Hearing Accepted.
Senator Keesinger said that Senator Swift had pushed the real issue. Senator Denver, Democratic floor leader, was ready to go into action against the bill when Senator Lantz agreed to hold it on second reading. An open hearing was agreed upon in the senate chamber for next Wednesday afternoon.

Senator Ross presented today a bill prohibiting the manufacture and sale of fireworks in Illinois. He said that the Chicago prohibitive ordinance was not successful because storekeepers set up fireworks shops in the suburbs and thus evaded that law.

POISON SOLD FOR MEDICINE KILL SISTERS, THEO

Coroner Orders Body Spinsters Exhumed

The body of Miss Marietta Cummings, a spinster, 40 years old, who died Feb. 5, will be exhumed and a coroner's chemist will make an analysis of the vital organs in an effort to determine the cause of death. The body of the same person was exhumed last week and a coroner's chemist was called in to make an analysis of the same. The body of the same person was exhumed last week and a coroner's chemist was called in to make an analysis of the same.

Dies After Taking Laxative
According to testimony, Miss Cummings died, after suffering for some time, shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday. An hour previous to her death, she had taken a dose of the same medicine. She had been in good health, her only ailment a slight headache.

Several witnesses testified that Miss Cummings, who died, had taken a dose of the same medicine from the same box, and had died hours preceding her death. The same symptoms as did her death. Relatives were positive that the poison, if such it was, caused the death of both women.

Contradictory to this theory was statement of Dr. C. D. Collins, who has an office in the Stewart building, who attended the first of the deaths. He said that the death of Miss Cummings was due to a heart attack.

Disputes Poison Theory.
"She had been ill for some time," said Dr. Collins. "She was feeble. Any shock would have killed her. I am positive she died of poisoning. The cancer."

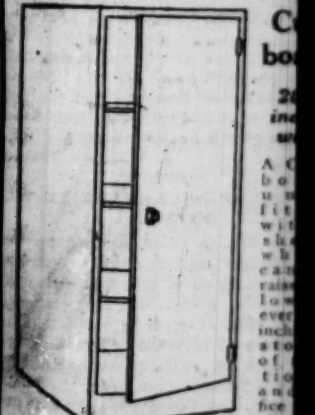

Mr. Kennedy ordered the police to request Dr. Collins to appear at the coroner's office this morning and make an official report of the case. He also signed a death certificate for Miss Cummings and no further action was taken.

Throughout the investigation, police and the coroner's office were unable to find any clue that led them to believe either woman had committed suicide, had been in good spirits, happy, and loved life, according to the testimony.

WILSON SOLD FOR MEDICINE KILLED SISTERS, THEORY

Coroner Orders Body of Spinster Exhumed.

The body of Miss Marietta Cummings, a spinster, 40 years old, who died Feb. 5, will be exhumed and the coroner's chemist will make an analysis of the vital organs in an effort to find out the cause of the same poison that killed her sister, Miss Anna Cummings. The sister died Wednesday night in her apartment at 2235 Wilson avenue.

The poison which killed Miss Anna Cummings was isolated by Dr. J. A. Weener, president of the Columbus Memorial hospital, and a member of the coroner's staff and found to be sodium cyanide, one of the most deadly poisons known. It is so powerful that with a single drop Dr. Weener engraved his name on his watch crystal. He said that a trifle of it introduced into the human system means certain death. An announcement of the proposed exhumation was made last night after a preliminary inquest into the death of Miss Anna Cummings. The deputy asserted that sufficient evidence to warrant exhumation had been presented at the inquest, which was held in the dead woman's apartment.

Dis After Taking Laxative.
According to testimony, Miss Anna Cummings died, after suffering acutely, shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday night. An hour previous to her death, a witness testified, the woman took a dose of a standard laxative preparation. Up to the time she swallowed the medicine Miss Cummings was in good health, her only ailment being a slight headache.

Several witnesses testified that Miss Marietta Cummings, who died Feb. 5, had taken a dose of the same laxative from the same box, and had during the hours preceding her death displayed the same symptoms as did her sister. Relatives were positive that the same medicine, if such it was, caused the death of both women.

Contradictory to this theory was the statement of Dr. C. D. Collins, who has been in the Stewart building, who attended the first of the Cummings women to die. The physician said a cancer of the throat caused the death of Miss Marietta Cummings.

Disputed Poison Theory.
"She had been ill for some time," said Dr. Collins. "She was weak and feeble. Any shock would have caused her death. I am positive she did not die of poisoning. The cancer caused her death."

Mr. Kennedy ordered the police to request Dr. Collins to appear at the coroner's office this morning and make an official report of the case. Dr. Collins signed a death certificate for Miss Marietta Cummings and no inquest was held.

Throughout the investigation the police and the coroner's officers have been unable to find any clue that would lead them to believe either of the women had committed suicide. Both had been in good spirits, had been happy and loved life, according to relatives.

"VERONICA"

Miss Irene Puciat plays the role of Veronica in the "Passion Play" to be given Sunday night at St. Stanislaus hall under the direction of the Rev. Casimir N. Pijanowski.

The officers believe both deaths were accidental. "The box of powder from which my sister mixed her laxative drink was one that was purchased at a drug store," said Miss Alice Cummings, a third sister. "It could have been bought at any drug store. Marietta drank some a few hours prior to her death. I am satisfied both deaths came from the same cause."

DANCER CHARGES OTHER WIVES IN BROKER'S CIRCLE

Revelations of undivorced wives in the life of John Wineke, former broker and loop café

habitué, caused Gladys High Wineke, society dancer and owner of two dancing schools, to supplement her recently filed bill for divorce by a petition for annulment of her marriage yesterday.

In the original bill the dancer charged that Wineke displayed a violent temper and an aptitude for passing checks upon intimate acquaintances.

Wineke was summoned from Cleveland by Mrs. Wineke's telegraphed offer of a reconciliation and upon arriving was arrested for passing a bogus $20 check on his wife's secretary.

The romance began in July, 1922, when she met Wineke through a mutual friend.

Ship Graveyard Yawns for 400 U. S. Freighters

Washington, D. C., March 15.—[Special.]—Approximately 400 cargo ships now in the possession of the United States shipping board, it was estimated here today, will be designated for the scrap heap under liquidation plans made necessary by the failure of the ship subsidy bill.

The government fleet today includes 1,385 vessels of all types. Eliminating 40 passenger ships, 80 tankers and 24 tugs, the fleet includes 1,249 freight vessels.

A conservative estimate puts the number of vessels to be offered for sale at approximately 300. These vessels will be the tip-top ships of the fleet. The board now has in operation in the freight service about 246 steel cargo ships, but by combining services it is believed this number can be cut to 300.

WHY NOT AN INQUIRY?

Gov. Small says the Wabgan jury bringing investigation is a case of persecution and an attempt to divert attention from the good roads program and the $100,000,000 bond issue fathered by him. Attorney General Brundage and THE TRIBUNE are in this dark plot, he charges.

We cannot speak for Mr. Brundage, or State Attorney Smith of Lake county, who is reported to have been carrying on the inquiry, but THE TRIBUNE's desire to divert attention from the road bond issue we leave to our readers. We may call the attention of Mr. Small, however, to the fact that we already have had ten rather extended editorials discussing his road bond scheme, besides columns of news matter on this subject, and we shall have more of both. If he feels this indicates any desire to divert attention from his proposals, we are afraid we cannot meet his expectations, but we are going to do our best.

As for persecution, we have heard that accusation before. It is an easy one for any official to make when his conduct is questioned. But, as against Mr. Small's explanation of the reported inquiry, we think the people of Illinois will recall as a more plausible explanation the following notorious facts, namely, that since his acquittal Gov. Small has put three of the jury on the pay roll of the state, as follows:

J. B. Field of Antioch was made a deputy game warden, and it is reported that his salary is higher than other deputy game wardens.

Walter C. Repkow of Waukegan and Frank Reardon, also of Waukegan, were appointed state traffic officers, their duty being to check the weight of automobile trucks on the state highways between Chicago and the Wisconsin line.

Besides these amiable acts Gov. Small has appointed Elmer J. Green, state superintendent of prisons, salary $5,000, replacing the expert penologist, J. L. Whitman. Mr. Green was sheriff and in charge of the jury during Mr. Small's trial.

And, finally, Gov. Small has placed on the Illinois commerce commission, one of the most important positions in the state, drawing a salary of $7,000 a year, Mr. W. J. Smith of Waukegan. Mr. Smith is editor of the Waukegan Sun, a newspaper which about the time of the trial switched violently to the support of Mr. Small and during the course of that proceeding did its best to discredit the prosecution, create an atmosphere of distrust and hostility against it, and spread the charges of persecution, political conspiracy, and what not put forth in the interest of the accused.

Mr. Small asks the people of the state to believe that an inquiry into prevalent and persistent reports of jury tampering is nothing more than persecution. We think the public will consider that the facts stated above are sufficient to cast the gravest suspicion upon the acquittal and fully to justify a thorough investigation by the law officers of the state or county.

THE ERROR OF THE POOR.

Some $90,000,000 worth of United States Victory 4% per cent bonds, which were called for redemption on Dec. 15 of last year, are still outstanding. What does that mean?

It may be an added indication that this country is enjoying remarkable general prosperity. Evidently the holders of these $90,000,000 worth of securities do not need cash. But even more important is the indication of ignorance or carelessness on the part of the bondholders.

The poor of the country, both workers and idle, are constantly complaining of the hardship and injustice of their lot. Yet it is the comparatively poor who are holding these bonds, three months after maturity. They have already sacrificed, roughly, $1,000,000, either because they do not know the bonds have been called for redemption or because they are too careless to cash them at a bank and put the money out at interest in some other security.

It is not the rich who are doing that. They cashed their bonds when called and have kept their money working for them. That is one reason why they are rich and the others are poor. To a considerable extent it is a matter of intelligence. The situation illustrates vividly the fundamental error of those who rail at wealth as an injustice and a crime in itself.

HERE'S WHERE WE CASH IN.

Mr. Bill Brennan of Chicago is, we believe, an honest old soul. His business is fighting with gloves, and we have Jack Dempsey's word for it (honest, personally delivered), that Bill is a strong, sturdy lad and a good boy. Mr. Brennan is also a good old trial horse. We hope he makes considerable money. He earns it. His job is to work other boxers up towards championship matches. He was used the other night in New York to work this Argentine, Firpo, up to a match with our Mr. Dempsey.

That is the frame. Mr. Dempsey will be put in the ring with Mr. Firpo. Mr. Dempsey, we know, has gone back. He is wintering in Capua and fading away to a ton. He doesn't fight. He lets Jack Kearns tell how anxious he is to fight. We never heard of that keeping a man in condition. The first thing Mr. Dempsey knows he will think boxing gloves are pillows, and the next thing he knows he'll be asleep because he laid his chin and not the back of his head on one.

However, it will not be the Firpo lad who sees the sleeping sickness overcoming our Neanderthal. It is proposed that the bout between Mr. Dempsey and Mr. Firpo be put on somewhere near the latter's home town. We're for that. It should be staged in the Argentine. There's where we pay the national debt and make enough for the next war.

Any American citizen who will see that the wage money is put up in a sound bank can have his expenses paid to the Argentine and have ten years' income waiting for him when he gets back. And to make it good, we suggest to the Argentines that they shoot the works. We'll bet Georgia, South Carolina, Florida and Mississippi against their whole Rudolph Valentino real estate that whenever Mr. Dempsey elects to do his stuff it is thereupon the late Mr. Firpo.

Yours for international comity and American expansion.

DOUBLE DECK LOOP SIDEWALKS.

While aldermen are struggling with the question of how and where to start the Chicago subway, a supplementary traffic improvement plan which would cover the entire loop district and relieve most of the interior loop traffic congestion at comparatively small cost is worthy of consideration. It is by no means a new idea, but it has points of interest and merit which justify revival and study. In brief, it is the idea of a system of upper level sidewalks, including bridges at street intersections. Obviously, if all pedestrian traffic were taken from the ground level in the loop and placed on a second story sidewalk level, with none of the dangers or delays of present street crossings, the speed of foot traffic could be almost doubled. Stairways, ramps, or use of elevators within buildings would make access to the upper level easy. There would be a corresponding advantage to vehicular traffic on the ground. The present sidewalks could be cut back to a minimum, giving room for extra lanes of traffic on each loop street, or for a large amount of parking space, without interfering with the present volume of vehicular traffic. If the entire loop were thus connected by upper level sidewalks, there would be no task of running up and down stairs. Once on the upper level, a pedestrian could travel wherever he desired in the loop on that level, and never once have to dodge or worry about a street car or automobile. Present display windows would, of course, be limited in value, but new display windows could be provided on the new level at little cost, thus improving the total display, and the improvement of traffic conditions should attract enough extra persons who now avoid the loop to more than compensate the stores and property owners.

The improvement could be brought about through a city ordinance in the same manner that it is planned to put through the double decking of South Water street. If it were planned to extend the system across the streets which have "L" structures, an engineering problem would be encountered, but undoubtedly it could be solved. Perhaps the improvement would be sufficient without crossing such streets.

Those are details insufficient to condemn the whole proposal. The great question in many minds will be how the loop would look with such an arrangement. Our artist's conception of that appears elsewhere in the paper. Certainly it would spread traffic and the comfort of all who use the loop, whether afoot or in vehicles. That alone should commend the idea to popular, if not official, attention.

WILL DECATUR BOW TO THE LASH?

Certain residents of Decatur, Ill., have arranged a massmeeting to be held today for the purpose of endorsing Gov. Small's $100,000,000 new road bond proposal. Although in the guise of a popular meeting, at which presumably all sides of the question might properly be discussed, this gathering, we are informed, is to be addressed only by persons favoring the governor's road policies, while the opposition has been refused a voice. Any verdict which the meeting may return in favor of the new $100,000,000 bond proposal must be correspondingly discounted by intelligent persons.

The incident is worthy of consideration because it is representative of conditions which Small politics have developed in numerous other counties besides Macon. Decatur, just as various other towns and districts, has been bluffed and bullied into the fear that it will not get its needed hard roads unless it supports the Small political ambitions. Although it is on one concrete highway almost completed across the state, and lies on another, the Meridian trail, from north to south, which is included in the original layout of roads in the $60,000,000 bond issue, Decatur fears that it will not get its quota of the $60,000,000 roads unless it earns Small's approval by voting for the new $100,000,000 issue, or otherwise doing what he asks. The fact that the Meridian trail is one of the most logical and necessary highway developments in the state gives Macon county no assurance that it will be built.

In such circumstances it is easy for the powers who lay out the roads to be improved and let the contractors for the work to coerce any community. How effectively it can be done in Macon county will be revealed by the resolutions adopted at the Decatur massmeeting.

Editorial of the Day

WORDS VS. ACTION.

[New York Journal of Commerce.]

Senator Capper is quoted in Washington dispatches to the effect that legislation could not be expected to raise farm prices and that there is no "quick and sure cure for the troubles of the farmer." Such words lie strangely indeed in the mouth of Senator Capper. That no sound legislation can raise prices and that there is no panacea for such ills as the farmer is suffering are admirable doctrines, however, and ought to receive the support of all public spirited citizens. The trouble is, of course, that the larger share of the senator's energy for a good while past has been given to attempting to do the very things that he now rightly says are impossible of achievement. Not only will his efforts in this direction fail but almost without exception will prove in the long run to hurt the farmer more than they help him. The "dirty" farmer who, as is often the case, possesses a reasonable share of hard head sense, may well see in all this another of "life's little grim jokes."

LINGER LONGER, LETTY.

"What did you say your age was?" he remarked between dances.
"Well, I didn't say," returned the girl smartly.
"But I've returned 21,"
"Is that so?" he returned consolingly. "What detained you?"—Stray Stories.

THE WRIGLEY BUILDING.

Lovely and lone I stand, in gleaming white, Deep buried in the slime and muck my feet, Where sluggish river and the blue lake meet, But day by day, beneath the hands of men, And stone on stone, I rose—and rose again— Until I left the City's stench behind, And felt the cool, damp kisses of the Wind— A perfumed thing that hurried in to me, Across the restless reach of inland sea, And whispered wondrous tales to me by night.

Tales of the ships that passed me far away— Tales that were grim and grisly—grave or gay— Ships that had passed, and now would pass no more, Bleaching with dead men's bones on some strange shore— Tales of the Northern headlands where they rose— Taller than I, the whisper ran, were those— And crowned with mighty forests, wild and free, Of silvery birch and stately balsam tree!

Lovely I stand—and lone—in gleaming white— And all my thoughts are of these curious things. The wondrous tales the whispering Night-Wind brings! And never do I heed the din and strife, The roar and hurry of the City's life, For I am far above, and kin to none, Save whispering wind—and waves—and stars—and sun!

What thought I am the work of puny man? Long shall I stand beyond his little span, And many ships shall sail that inland sea— And sailors yet unborn look up to me— And wondrous tales I'll hear on many a night!

LINE OF THE EXPEDITION INTO THE SAHARA.

Floyd Gibbons, the W. K. correspondent, is going to lead a Tribune expedition into the sandiest part of the sandy Sahara to find a lost tribe called the Taureux. Just what the Trib wants of the Taureux after it gets 'em is not quite clear unless they want to show them the plans of the new building. Anyhow, Taureux is going to give a big kick to the Tongue Twister content. The T words were all pretty well used up.

BET YOU I TO B ON MOONSHINE.

Dear R. H. L.: The "Hands of Death" race as run by the W. G. N. begins to look like a lobster race to me. At the present writing it looks as if we are soon due for an eclipse of the moon. When Autos pass the 200 post (mortem) please insist that it be mentioned he has been around once, and not leave Guns in an unfair leading position. My money is on Autos to win and Moonshine for place. Guns are out of date. R. J. N.

THE INSPIRED AUTO DRIVER.

[By The Associated Press.]
Detroit, Mich., March 12.—A baby was born to Mrs. John Cairns Thursday in the midst of a motor car accident. Mrs. Cairns was being driven to a hospital by Morton Kiladon, a neighbor, when Kiladon's car collided with that of Dr. Thomas Starr. Neither car was able to proceed. Dr. Starr attended Mrs. Cairns. Mother and baby are doing well.

OH, THAT WE LIVE 'TIL SUMMER!

R. H. L.: What's the use of worrying about the six things that the heroine of something or other wrote? According to the latest dressmakers' exhibition, they'll be going around this summer without a stitch. No—no; that isn't what I mean; it's so cool anyhow—poor things—poor things! I mean they go to dress in clothes that haven't a stitch in them—draped, they call 'em. I suppose that cuts out safety pins, too. I really don't see, with the weather as it is—so windy and all—six things!

The forehead and hair belong to Mary Pickford; the nose and eyes are those of Henry Ford; and the chin belongs to Leader Luder. Easy! Dare you to print another puzzle picture. Ed. McCauley.

WHERE SHALL WE SEND THE ONE HUNDRED?

Dear R. H. L.: It seems to me after a careful study of the T. T. awards that you may say your tongue around the same word more than once and still be all jake. On that basis this ought to be a winner, "Bla Bla Bla Bla Bla Bla Bla Bla Bla." Reventon. Gowk.

A CASE FOR THE PSYCHOPATHIC HOSPITAL.

"Well," she said, "he may seem quiet, but that man hasn't an interest in life since long skirts came in, and then," dropping her voice to a whisper and looking furtively around, "now don't breathe this to a soul, but he is the kind of a fellow that doesn't read the Line!"

LANDLORD PROVIDES FREE GAS.

Chicago, March 12.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—The former owner of the building agreed to furnish gas without charge when I rented my apartment. This clause is not contained in the lease, although when the apartment was advertised the owner stated that the gas was free. The new owner has had individual gas meters installed and we were compelled to sign with the gas company in order to avert a shut-off.

SHUT OUT "RATHER THAN THE MOVIES."

THERE IS A CAR OF THAT NAME.

SIMPLE FIRST AIDS TO THE HEATER.

THE place: A large hotel room with an eastern exposure and three large windows. The windows look out over a park, and beyond that, a large body of water.

The time: A day in February during which the thermometer registered around zero and an east wind howled. The steam coils placed beneath the windows were too few and too small to properly heat so large a room under the conditions of wind and cold. The act: The curtains were pulled down. This simple procedure served to raise the temperature of the room several degrees.

The window glass was very cold. The air of the room felt rapidly by coming in contact with the cold glass. When the curtains were pulled down, a layer of air was imprisoned between the glass and the curtains. Air is a poor conductor of heat. The curtain kept the warm air of the room away from the cold glass. The current of hot air rising from the radiators traveled up the inside face of the curtains instead of traveling up the inside face of the cold glass, and by reason of this change in routing the warm air caused it to reach the occupants of the room at a temperature considerably above that which previously characterized it.

Supporting act: Hot water was allowed to run in the bathtub until that vessel was full. The bathroom door was left open. This simple procedure contributed materially to the comfort of the room. In the first place, a full sized bathtub, filled with hot water, is a mean source of heat in an ordinary suite. In the second, the amount of moisture evaporated from this tub of hot water was considerable. The rise in humidity of the air made a temperature of 60° feel as warm as one at 65° usually does.

When perspiration is evaporable and moisture is being lost by respiration at the rate at which these losses occur in an atmosphere with a relative humidity of 20, the skin is chilled and an excessive amount of heat is lost.

This makes a temperature as high as 70° or 75° seem cold. The temperature of the body being close to 100, an air temperature of even 75° represents a difference of 25 degrees between body heat and air heat. It follows that the degree of discomfort from cold is due to the rate at which the body loses heat and only indirectly to the temperature of the air.

When the air is cold, the reason a room in which the air is hot, but very dry, may feel cold. I know one man who must work in a room where he cannot humidify the air by better means, who keeps the wash bowl full of hot water.

A second supporting procedure consisted in placing the electric fan on the floor. About the only heat escape from the floor was blown through the radiator, and, incidentally, the hot air around

KNIFE FOR LIFOMA.

G. F. K. writes:
"I have what may doctor called a fatty lump in the back part of my leg, about twelve inches above the knee. The doctor said that this could probably be scattered, if not, it would have to be cut out. Would painting lump with iodine do any good or any harm?"

3. Is there any danger in not having lump cut out? Would it cause a sound like a gasoline engine running in the head? What can be done for same?"

1. I judge you have a lipoma. It is trouble you much, have it cut out.
2. No. Nothing to scatter on either lipoma or leg.
3. No. No danger either way.

4. Head noises are due to middle or internal ear. The cause of the noise is in the ear, not in the head. You must treat the ear.

A NEW MORTGAGE.

Chicago, March 6.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—About three years ago I bought a player piano on the installment plan, on which I still owe about $15.

The company from which I bought this piano has been taken over by a new one recently.

When I made my last month's payment I was informed that I would have to sign a new mortgage, as the old one would expire next month, being good only for three years. When I signed the mortgage no mention was made of the length of time it covered.

1. Is a mortgage of this nature good for such a long time?

2. If so, can this company compel me to sign a new one?

3. If I do sign a new one am I entitled to the same piano? When I signed the mortgage I paid the piano away from me if I refuse to sign the new mortgage, but still keep up the payments?

ARE PARENTS SIDESTEPPING RESPONSIBILITY?

Iowa City, Ia., March 12.—I sometimes wonder why parents are shifting their responsibility upon society, in bringing up their sons and daughters. Who are responsible for the young men and young women growing up into manhood and womanhood? Is it not the parents? Then why not start the campaign to have them meet their responsibilities, instead of shifting the same to the scout masters, scout mistresses, and the school teachers? Who better understands the young boy or the young girl than their own parents? To whom do these young people feel responsible for their work and play—from the time they arise in the morning until they are in bed at night? Who better understands their whims and wishes, their weak points and good points, than their parents?

We would be given to understand that they are to be "fanned out" to others; who will never take the personal interest in them as would the parents, to correct their faults, and what not. Too many mothers and fathers are shirking their responsibilities.

Welfare movements are encouraging club life on a small scale. They accept the masses of the younger generation, and are seriously in need of a rest, that the people may better appreciate the value of health and contentment. The present nervous strain and tension is bound to develop another generation into mental and physical degeneration. Look over the criminal records, divorces, etc., and then draw your own conclusions.

HISTORY REPEATS.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., March 11.—Last we forgot, in your "Fifty Years Ago Today" yesterday appeared: "A special dispatch from Berlin to the London Times says Germany refuses to evacuate Belgium until the payment of the war indemnity is completed by France."

Those prone to condemn France now should ponder this item.

Quite coincident that the tables should have turned on the half century mark. Unless intrigue ceases in Europe it is not unlikely that on March 9, 1973, Germany may be sitting on France's neck in Paris awaiting war indemnity. Would it not be polite for France and Germany to bury the hatchet permanently?

A Requisite of Style Is Suitability

THE subtle quality which gives to clothes an identity is, of course, style; and though there are other factors which contribute forcibly to style, one of the most elemental is unquestionably suitability.

A striking example is in sports clothes, underlying whose vogue to-day is something deeper-rooted than caprice or coincidence. And that "something" is obviously their suitability—to the occasion, surroundings, and the individual—the result of intelligent designing with reference to their comfort and ultimate purpose. Consequently, sports clothes have become a type, have developed a style distinctly their own, singularly adapted to their field.

During these last two days of the Exposition a multitude of displays of new merchandise open vistas of Springtime freshness to all who visit this Store.

GARY COURT GOT ITS RUM LOOT, WITNESS SAYS

Renews Charges Against Many City Officials.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 15.—(Special.)—City officials of Gary divided themselves into two groups, one of which was the "rum lot," after they got what they wanted, the balance, dividing the proceeds, Dan Melloy, former deputy constable of Gary, testified today in federal court here.

Twenty-three defendants, including the mayor, prosecuting attorney, police and officers, charged with conspiracy to violate federal prohibition laws, listened to Melloy's evidence.

A grilling cross examination failed to shake Melloy's story, but brought out points not hitherto touched upon.

Clyde Hunter, former prosecutor of Lake county, and William M. Dunn, city judge, were most frequently mentioned by Melloy, star witness for the government.

Had it by Court Time.

"I used to deliver whisky to Hunter and Dunn," Melloy testified. "I delivered as high as three or four cases at a time to Hunter's share and to Dunn. Sometimes I took it to Dunn's office before court opened in the morning."

"I also gave them twenty or twenty-five flasks of liquor, when I caught Frank Burich with about $1,000 worth of gin. I forget which one I gave him. I don't remember whether it was Dunn or Hunter who was the gin drinker."

"Tony put up $500 cash bond. This was kept and divided. Fred Seabright, one of the defendants, got $25, and I got some. I guess Hunter and Dunn got some, too."

Kept Prosecutor's Split Safely.

Melloy said that on one occasion when Hunter was out of town for several days he kept Hunter's share of the "split" for him and turned it over to him when he returned.

Melloy said it was a common understanding "that certain places were to be let alone. Among those he named were places run by Martin and John Bennett, Jake Friedman and Mike Johnson, defendants in the present case."

"There were some drug stores and cigar stores, too," he said.

"The names of Dwight M. Kinder, prosecutor, and William P. Ode, sheriff, were brought in by Melloy."

"Kinder told me he had some sort of an understanding for a 50-50 split with Ode for money taken as bonds on outside raids," he said.

W. S. CARTER, LONG BROTHERHOOD CHIEF, IS DEAD IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., March 15.—William S. Carter, former president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, died at a local hospital here today, aged 62 years. He was ill with arterio-sclerosis. The funeral will be held in Washington Saturday or Sunday.

Born in Austin, Tex., Aug. 21, 1859, Mr. Carter had devoted his whole life to organization of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. He was president of the union for a number of years.

Mr. Carter was a practical railroad man, having entered on his career when 20 years old, working as a fireman and engineer for fifteen years on several roads throughout the middle and southwest, and in Mexico. He later became editor and manager of the Locomotive Firemen and Engineers' Magazine, official organ of the brotherhood.

In 1904, Mr. Carter was elected secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, serving in this capacity until 1908, when he became president. He held that office for fourteen years, until William G. McAdoo, then director general of the United States railroad administration, appointed Mr. Carter as director of the division of labor in the administration.

He served as labor director from 1918 until 1920, in addition to his duties as president of the brotherhood. He later was succeeded by D. E. Robertson and became managing director of the search department of the union, which office he held until the time of his death.

North Michigan Avenue has won a place among

The Style Streets of the World—

Michigan Avenue, North—Chicago
Fifth Avenue—New York
Rue de la Paix—Paris

MERGING all qualities of Fashion predominance, so often asserted by Parisian couturieres or the exclusive shops along New York's Fifth Avenue, Michigan Avenue, North, has won a place of distinctive renown all its own.

This attractive Boulevard has gained prestige both among fashion experts and among those painstaking buyers who follow advanced Fashion's decree. From the Tower Building on the south to the Drake Hotel on the north, there is an assemblage of specialty shops that furnishes a Mecca for people of taste and discernment. Looking toward the western development of the Arts, no other Street in the world offers like opportunities for creative style advancement. Moreover, the western incentive of common-sense conservatism makes this Boulevard a place of good investment—inducing the rare pride of economy, without any taint of empty extravagance.

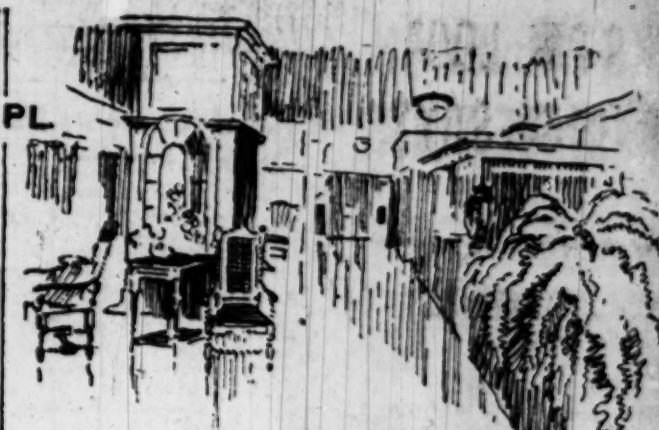

From Paris has come the inclination to use pronounced color, with less and less of the black and somber shades. The fashionable silhouette is for the most part straight and narrow, with all the restraint of the classic. Yet there are subtle diversions and variations that do not destroy the purity of line. Sleeves retain interest through exquisite detail. Dinner Gowns display beauty of color and richness of embroidery that is really fascinating, while lines the most beautifully modest are preserved. It is only in the Evening Gowns and Tea Gowns that the rigueurs of conventionality relax a little.

In Sports Wear there is a wide range of fabric and pattern, with a flare of color. The popularity of natural tan Camel's Hair will be evidenced for Club and Country recreation. The modern sportswoman or gentleman will find in latest hand-tailored athletic garments a welding of line, color and texture at once practical and vibrant with the spirit of the out-of-doors. Alpaca Coat Sweaters and Brushed Wool are more popular than ever.

Importations reveal a wealth of accessories and home adornments in French lace and Italian needlecraft. Sheer hand woven handkerchiefs are expressive of true taste. For the bride comes Irish hand woven linen, produced by the old loom weavers in the little villages around Belfast.

For men the style dictate comes as usual—from England—loose three or four button coats, straight cut, with a tendency toward lower waistline. New colors are Quaker and Puritan Greys.

POLICE TO WATCH HOMES AND KIN OF DEFECTIVES

Judge Olson Announces New Policy.

BY SELBY MAXWELL.
Chief Justice Harry Olson announces that in the near future the police department of the city of Chicago will begin watching the homes and relatives of mentally unsound persons who pass through the psychopathic laboratory.

"We will do this out of kindness, not in anger," he said. "A mentally deficient person is sick. You would not expect a cripple with only one leg to walk normally. Neither should you expect one with a part of his brain gone to behave in a rational manner."

Then the chief justice said that most of the offenders brought to court were suffering from hereditary mental troubles, and he declared that it lay in the power of the courts and the police to correct them in the future before they did another wrong.

Churches Aiding Work.
Judge Olson added that it was also part of police duty to locate members of the unfortunate's family, to learn if others also were afflicted. He said many schools and churches were aiding him in this work.

Most hereditary is good, the judge explained. But unfortunately when it is bad it does not tend to correct itself. "There are two sorts of traits in every human being, dominant and recessive. The dominant is easy to take care of, because everybody can see it. The recessive is hard to deal with because it does not appear until a marriage bears fruit."

Effect on Offspring.
Mental soundness is dominant to mental sickness, but intellectual disorders, unlike physical ones, are frequently inheritable. Should two persons with diseased minds marry, all their children will carry the taint. Then, if one of these should marry even a healthy person, the trait would be transmitted in this ratio: One sound child, one tainted child, and two children who seemed sound, but who have a hidden taint.

The sound child has nothing to worry about, for his heredity will always be pure. If the tainted children marry sound mates, all their children will seem sound, although some will carry a hidden warp. But here is the danger: Should a tainted person marry another tainted person, even though the mark did not show in either, at least one of their children would be obviously mentally deficient. It is to prevent such things that Judge Olson is working.

Owe Debt to Posterity.
"People must realize that there are well bred breeds of men and sick," the judge said. "Love shouldn't play a leading part when damage to the people as a whole would result. We who are alive today owe a little to the people who shall come after us, and that little is to see that they get clean, healthy hereditaries."

SEEK PROOF OF GENUINE SPOOK PORTRAIT IN N. Y.

To Give $5,000 for Spirit Talking.

New York, March 15.—(Special.)—Herward Carrington, a psychic investigator and one of the judges named by the Scientific American in connection with its $5,000 offer for proof of genuine spirit talking, writing, drawing, or photographing, began today an investigation of the alleged spirit portraits by Mrs. Janet Singh.

Mr. Carrington studied both sides of the pieces of flooring on which these portraits appeared, according to Mrs. Singh, when she merely concentrated her mind on Bible texts. Mr. Carrington was looking for knots which sometimes take an oval shape and with assistance from the graining of the wood, or a little human touching up, resemble a portrait. He found a promising knot in one picture, but not on the other.

"I am not able to form any definite opinion on the matter as yet," said Mr. Carrington. "I am going to interview Mrs. Singh tomorrow and have a look at the pictures under the glass. It ought not to be difficult to tell tomorrow just how the thing was done."

The claim that a picture had formed itself in this permanent fashion on wood was new, according to Mr. Carrington, but he said that Mrs. Blavatsky, the theosophist, had made somewhat similar claims. She asserted pictures were drawn without brush or pencil, while she concentrated her gaze on a piece of paper.

Something resembling this had been reported already in Paris, Mr. Carrington added. Psychic investigators there put a person supposedly gifted to focus her attention on the wall, form a picture in her mind, and try to project it. After leaving her to operate on the wall a few minutes, the investigators took the woman out of the chamber and put in an alleged clairvoyant. The clairvoyant seemed to have some success in describing her mental picture.

Mrs. Singh failed today to keep her appointment to show observers over the public place where she said that her repeated starings had produced a small gallery of pictures. Tonight she said that she had been compelled to dash down to her bank to straighten out something about her bank account.

MRS. LA FOLLETTE HITS PERSHING'S PREPAREDNESS

Feists War Machine on U. S., She Says.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Washington, D. C., March 15.—[Special.]—The army reorganization act of 1920 was denounced as the "direct outgrowth of the hysteria of war," and the "false assumptions" and "persuasive philosophy" of Gen. Pershing, in his recent public addresses on national defense, were scored by Mrs. Roger M. La Follette, wife of Senator La Follette (Rep., Wis.), at the conference today of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

"Throughout the last two years," Mrs. La Follette said, "the secretary of war, chief of staff and other distinguished officials of the war department, have availed themselves of every opportunity to arouse and enthrall the American public to stand back of the huge militaristic scheme provided for in the army reorganization act."

"President Harding has cooperated in a kindly way and has urged that at least 100,000 men shall be trained annually under its provisions."

"She warned the league against the 'continuous threat' of military training and said that the reorganization act, 'in transferring the control, heretofore exercised by congress, to the general staff, put the policy of the nation, insofar as it relates to militarization, into the relentless grip of the war machine.'"

"Until the law is repealed," she said, "the only way that congress can influence that policy is by withholding appropriations. Quite recently the Wisconsin assembly passed a bill abolishing the Wisconsin National guard. It failed in the senate."

Resolutions at The Hague conference of the league last December denouncing the existing peace treaties as contrary to the armistice terms and calling for a "new peace based on international agreements" were presented to Secretary of State Hughes by Miss Maude Royden of England and Mrs. Lucy Biddle Lewis and Mrs. Hannah Clothier Hull of the United States section of the league, the envoys appointed by Miss Jane Addams to bring the resolutions to the United States.

HOW PRESIDENT HALTED "GRAFT" TOLD BY LEGION

Stopped Low Price
Sale of Supplies.

Washington, D. C., March 15.—[Special.]—How President Harding early this year took a hand in affairs of the veterans' bureau when complaints of its operations became widespread was revealed today by representatives of the American Legion who have been largely responsible for charges of waste.

President Harding, it develops, acted on a complaint of Brig. Gen. Sawyer regarding disposal of a large quantity of hospital supplies at Perryville, Md., by bureau officials after the public health service had protested. According to a statement appearing in the American Legion Weekly, the President by executive order put a stop to the sale.

Describing events shortly after the first of the year connected with the bureau the statement says: "Gen. Sawyer, the President's physician and close adviser on veterans' rehabilitation matters, received a telephone call from Surgeon General Cummings of the public health service. General Cummings protested against the sale of surplus hospital supplies at Perryville, Md., where a large depot of the veterans' bureau is located."

"Gen. Sawyer called on Director Rogers, who agreed to stop the removal of the supplies from Perryville and sent a telegram to this effect. A few days later Gen. Sawyer received word that the sales were continuing nevertheless."

"He ordered his car and was driven to Perryville. As he entered the depot he saw a heavily laden truck go out. He saw another being loaded. He broke open one of the boxes. It contained towels. Inquiry developed that they were being sold for 20 per cent of cost. They were good towels, such as the public health service was buying for its current needs."

"Gen. Sawyer directed that the truck be stopped. Then he speeded back to Washington and related the story to the President. Gen. Cummings later protested that mattresses were being sold at Perryville at great discount when the government actually needed mattresses in its hospitals."

"It is alleged, furthermore, that materials were shipped to Perryville from various parts of the country to augment the 'surplus' there, which allegedly favored firms were buying at bargain prices."

ECONOMICAL WOMEN MUST HAVE THE TRIBUNE—because much of its advertising—merchandising news—is not found in any other newspaper.

The Story of the BAYNE Family

{ An Analysis of Life }

THERE were seven people in the Bayne family, the father, mother, and five children. They occupied a nine-room house on a respectable street in Chicago. They were a good example of average people. Mr. Bayne had made a little money and saved a little. Mrs. Bayne helped him. She was careful with her household accounts, watching zealously her share of expenditures. They lived conservatively.

To finish the picture, the Baynes read a conservative evening paper as they sat in the living room after dinner, and they made their careful necessary purchases from its advertising columns.

This paper told of events in the Republican and Democratic parties; of conditions in China and Moscow; of the daily happenings of the city—all very conservatively, and all in small headings with very small type—which suited the conservative Baynes.

But there was another picture in the Bayne family.

The Baynes had five children—much like other children—a boy of 16, just out of high school and who could not wait much longer to get into the swing of life; a pretty girl of 14, who was beginning to watch other girls who put their hair up; a gangling girl of 12, all legs and knees and elbows and a terrible bother generally; a young hopeful of eight, and a baby boy, who was no longer a baby because he was five and almost ready for school.

And that was the other side of the picture.

The younger Baynes were not interested in China and Moscow. And doings at the city hall didn't excite them. Even the 14-year-old girl didn't get any thrill out of the corner on dress patterns on the 16th page (the girls weren't wearing them that way any more). So the elder conservative Baynes had their conservative evening paper pretty much to themselves, which, after all, was what they wanted.

Then one evening the oldest boy came home from work with another newspaper. He had bought it at the newsstand because he wanted to buy a paper like other men—business men. And this, after several experiments, was the paper he had decided upon.

It was a different looking paper. The headings were big. Their expressions were vivid. The boy could get his teeth into what they said and visualize what was happening. And on the sports page was a corking picture showing the crucial play of the football game he was not able to see that day. There was the fullback just after he had smashed off-tackle for the winning touchdown. Just his face was showing from a mass of piled-up humanity—but the ball was over the last white line.

A thrilling moment in the young Bayne's life. He read the story of the game almost without breathing. It was young America speaking to young America in its own language. And he cut out the picture and pasted it in his room—near his bed.

A little later the pretty 14-year-old girl has looked over his shoulders as he turned the pages and discovered some stunning pictures of three of the "younger social set" that all the girls were talking about at school. A moment later and she has appropriated a part of the paper.

And after that there are two evening papers in the Bayne home. Soon it comes to be an accepted fact.

Young Bayne even begins to take an interest in Russia and Washington, as his imagination is fired by more vivid reports and photographs of important personages.

The pretty girl seeks to change her mother's ideas about dressmaking; the kids clamor for the "funnies."

The years slip along. The elder Baynes are discussing the fact that the boy has been staying out night after night and the girl is going to parties, although she is too young and her mother feels that she ought to speak to her about it.

And while they are still cogitating upon this subject, the boy slyly appears one evening with another girl and introduces her, and the two elder Baynes look at each other and a little shiver goes through them, because this was their baby and now they know by all the signs of life that he is no longer a baby; that another Bayne home is to be started soon and that the years have finally turned their faces toward the setting sun.

Time races along at this period of life; races with incredible swiftness. Almost as if it were a moving picture, the children come up into life.

And they are not interested in the interests of the older Baynes. They do not dress the way the elder Baynes dressed; they do not dance the way they danced. They do not even read the paper that the elder Baynes read for so many years. They have another paper, a more vigorous paper, a paper with pictures and life and zest in it, a paper that deals vigorously with vigorous subjects, a paper that flashes its news in headlines that you get at a glance.

And now the twilight shadows of life gather about the older Baynes as they take a smaller house. Because even the baby is married—the last wee bird has flown from the "old nest."

So now there are five Bayne homes instead of one. They haven't the complete outfits of the old Bayne residence. They haven't bought their silver yet; their furniture is rather makeshift because these homes are in the making and all the appurtenances and appliances that go into the making of a home are also in the making—very often—the money making.

But there is hope and vigor and life in these five homes of the younger Baynes where there is only retrospect and tender memories in the little home where live the elderly Baynes. These young homes are going to buy this and that; are going to build so and so. And each year sees these young homes becoming more and more perfect homes.

Every evening in these five young homes there is a newspaper, just as there was in the elderly home.

But it isn't the old, conservative newspaper of the elder Baynes. It is the other newspaper that the younger Baynes had learned to read and follow and enjoy. It is the paper that was vigorous with the sports and thoughts and activities of younger America—that younger American paper for younger Americans.

From its news columns they get their news and views of life. And from its advertising columns they buy their wants. And there is much to buy because their life is new and their wants many.

Nor do they change their paper as they go along in years any more than the elder Baynes changed theirs. The more vigorous life of this twentieth century appeals to them in their forties as much as it did in their twenties, just as the quieter life of the latter part of the nineteenth century appealed to the elder Baynes.

And so this is the story of the Bayne family. One family going out, five families coming in. One family slowly tiring of its load and letting go, five families buying into life with all the money and energy they can control.

And in Chicago, the younger American paper that appeals with such preponderance to the families of these new homes, "to the generations under 40 and those who think under 40" is unquestionably the Evening American.

SIXTH DAY ADDED TO BOXING MEET
AS ENTRY SWELLS

enth Hour Rush Puts
Total Near 400.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

The entry list for the Chicago Amateur Boxing championships to be conducted by the Tribune A. A. at Ashland Boulevard auditorium, starting next Wednesday, have exceeded all expectations. It has been necessary to prolong the tournament another day. As a result of the new arrangement, the tournament will cover six days. There will be three days of boxing on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. The boxes then will be called together on Saturday, March 24, 25, and 26.

The new arrangement, however, will do the boxes immeasurably, enabling them to put up their best exhibitions. There will be a two-day intermission between the first three days and the second three. This will allow needed rest, and the odds will not be called upon to box as often if the tournament were crowded into four or five days.

Record Entry List.

According to men who have followed amateur boxing for years, such as Prof. O'Connell and Harry Gilmore Jr., the tournament is the greatest boxing event that has been held in Chicago. The old times asserted they cannot recall when any similar event ever attracted an entry so large and representative of every organization which fosters the sport.

With a few more entries remaining to be classified and rechecked an actual individual entry of 277 already is in. All have joined the A. A. U. so that the tournament will conform to all requirements. Most interest has been displayed in the 125, 135, and 147 pound classes. In the lightweight class 82 contestants have been received. There are 64 for the welterweight and 62 for the featherweight. The bantamweight class has attracted 47 and the flyweight 62.

There are 14 entries in each of the heavyweight and light heavyweight classes, while 40 will compete in the 170 pound class.

Youngsters Show Interest.

From this entry it readily will be seen that the younger generation is taking a keen interest in sports than the older boys. This also was true of the Turner Silver Skates Derby, in which the junior derby, open to boys under 13 years, attracted a larger field than the senior, eligible to those 18 years of age and over.

Among the entries received yesterday, but which were mailed last Wednesday, and therefore were eligible, was that of the Marlowe A. C., of which Ed Springer is in charge of boxing. According to Springer the boys are receiving daily instruction from professional boxers. This also was true of the entries from the Chicago Athletic Club, which also has added to their original entry list. Judging from this sort of entry, team rivalry will assert itself on each night of the tournament.

Boxers in Training.

All boxers have been in training since the dates of the tournament were first announced and most of them should pass the physical examinations of Dr. John P. O'Connell and Ben F. O'Connell, who have been asked to look after this important feature.

The complete list of entries, together with the athletic associations they represent, will be published in Sunday's issue of THE TRIBUNE.

BRENNAN IS OUT OF ALL DANGER, DOCTOR REPORTS

New York, March 15.—(By Associated Press.)—Bill Brennan, who is in a hospital with a slight concussion of the brain, resulting from his knockout at the hands of Luis Firpo Monday night in Madison Square Garden, tonight was declared "out of danger" by Dr. Edward L. Spitzer, in attendance. He will be able to leave the hospital in three or four days, it was said. Dr. Spitzer said there was no skull fracture.

Spitzer admitted that it was the worst boxing head injury he had received. Besides the head injury and body bruises, Brennan sustained a bone in his right foot—the same leg he broke when Jack Dempsey gave him one of his other two knockouts.

SIKI MAY HAVE TO BEAT IRISH REPUBLIC ARMY BEFORE M'TIGUE

DUBLIN, March 15.—(United Press.)—Battling Siki, the Senegalese heavyweight, will have to beat the Irish rebel army when he weighs in against Mike McTigue, the Irish pugilist, here Saturday—St. Patrick's day.

The Free State government, fearing that the insurgents may attempt forcibly to stop the fight and start one of their own, has thrown an extra guard about the Scala theater, where the battle is to take place.

The adherents of De Valera have declared a ban on all sports and amusements in Ireland on the patron saint's day.

DUBLIN, March 15.—[Associated Press.]—Both McTigue and Siki are reported to be in splendid condition for their bout Saturday. They have been giving sparring exhibitions on alternate days to large crowds in the Rotunda this week. The impression of the fight, however, is that Siki has been more effective in his work, and the betting, which has favored McTigue, now has turned in favor of the colored man. A large number of fight fans and boxers have arrived in Dublin to witness the bout, among them Frank Moran, Bombardier Wells, and Jim Coffey. Georges Carpentier and his manager, Francois Deschamps, will arrive here tomorrow.

Burnan Out for Kayo.

Burnan realizes he has the chance of his pugilistic career. The local boxer has everything to win and nothing to lose. For these reasons he is training diligently at the Arcade and claims he will dispose of the champion if he gets a good shot at Joe's jaw. Burnan can rock with his right hand, and hopes for the knockout that would give him the much sought bantam championship.

Lynch will show his wares to local fans at the Arcade tomorrow.

Although the Burnan Lynch bout is attracting a deal of attention, the rounder between Harold Smith and Eddie Anderson has his following. This will be strictly a bantam contest, both boys having agreed to make 115 pounds. Smith is training at Ferretti's and Anderson at the Arcade.

How Others Square Off.

The other two ten round bouts will bring together Mike Dundas of Detroit and Patsy Flannigan of St. Louis and Frankie Garcia of Memphis. Billy Sterns of Minneapolis and Joe O'Hara of Fort Dodge, Ia., 135 pounders, will open the show in an eight round contest.

The Wallace A. C. will hold its annual reception and ball tonight at Villa Gardens, 47th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Aid Joseph McDonough will lead the grand march.

Cowboy Paddock, the Colorado welterweight, passed through Chicago on his way to Detroit. He will not have a fight until Wednesday. He was accompanied by Manager Roy Alvir.

The Mullen Maroons will hold a dance at the Ashland Boulevard Auditorium tonight. According to Jim Mullen, St. Patrick's day will be celebrated in a grand old fashioned manner.

Sammy Mandell, 160-pound 134 pounder, will be tested for a month or six weeks following a physical examination by Dr. John M. Lilly, who asserted the boxer is not down, a result of making weight. Dr. Lilly asserted with himself still about himself, but he was not worried. Eddie Lane about his making low weight.

Firpo to Be Handled by De Forrest and Langford

New York, March 15.—(By Associated Press.)—Luis Firpo is going to be handled over to Jimmy De Forrest, the well known trainer, for more seasoning. Incidentally Jimmy is going to have Sam Langford, the old tar baby, helping out with Firpo. That ought to make a great combination. Nothing that De Forrest does not know about the boxing business, and as for Langford, they never came any tougher than that old bird.

NEW SIKI-GEORGE DATE.

PARIS, March 15.—(United Press.)—The anticipated return match is on again, dated for Sept. 10. The announcement was made by the French boxing federation, which states that Georges' manager has agreed and Siki's acceptance has been received by him.

BUD DEMPSEY STOPPED BY BATTING CHINK

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of The Tribune boxing representatives are:

At Armour Post club—Battling Chink scored technical K. O. over Bud Dempsey [5];

Battling Williams best Jabber Young [6];

Eddie Walsh best Jimmy Dennis [6]; Kay Miller best Sailor Frank [6];

At Philadelphia—Danny Draner best Pedro Camp [5];

At Granger, N. J.—Bryan Downey best Phil Krug [12].

Battling Chink, Cincinnati bantamweight, scored a technical knockout over Bud Dempsey of New York in the fifth round of a scheduled ten round bout at the show of Armour post of the American Legion last night.

A hard right, straight from the Cincinnati lad's shoulder, opened an old cut over Dempsey's left eye in the second round. The flow of blood was so great by the time the fifth arrived that Referee Joe Coffey stepped in and stopped it.

Chink had taken the lead in the opening session and after he opened the cut over Bud's eye there was nothing to it, Dempsey boxing under a great handicap and partly blinded. The side of the eye cut, however, neither lad was injured.

The show brought out a capacity audience and there was a lot of action in each of the four rounds. Battling Williams of Chicago won off by himself in the six round semi-windup with Jabber Young of Milwaukee. Eddie Walsh of Chicago knocked Jimmy Dennis down twice in their six rounder, and won.

GIRL ACCUSER OF RUTH FLEES FROM N. Y. PUBLICITY

New York, March 15.—(Special.)—Miss Dolores Dixon, who intends claiming $50,000 from "Habe" Ruth on the ground that he is the father of her expected baby, has left this city and will not return for a week, according to her attorney, George Feinberg.

"As Miss Dixon went out of town last night, I am unable to keep my promise," Feinberg said. "She went with friends, impelled by the publicity her case has aroused. I shall file the summons and complaint in her action which will be introduced in the case which will prove Ruth knew Miss Dixon as his 'little girl' and as his 'little white chink'."

SAUNDERS BEATS AMATEUR CHAMP IN FOUR ROUND GO

Tony Saunders beat Walter Newton, an amateur lightweight champion in Canada, in the final bout at Ferretti's loop gym last night. The other amateur bouts of the weekly program resulted as follows:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 15.—(Special.)—Eddie Collins, star second baseman of the Chicago White Sox, at his home here today said that he is not a holdout.

"It seems whenever a player does not hustle off to training camps at the first whistle in the spring he is called a 'holdout,'" Collins said. "I have no differences with the Chicago club and expect to leave for the south in a few days."

Collins said he is not disgruntled over the collapse of the White Sox-Yankee deal which would have sent him to New York.

DURANT SMASHES ALL 5 AND 10 MILE RECORDS

Los Angeles, March 15.—Cliff Durant, automobile race driver, in speed tests on the Los Angeles speedway today broke all world's records, both the five and ten mile distances, and was announced by speedway officials.

The trials were made under the supervision and with the sanction of the contest board of the American Automobile association and will be recognized as official, it was said.

Durant's time for five miles was announced as 2:23.40, an average of 118.42 miles an hour. This broke the non-competitive record of 2:38.55, formerly held by the late Eddie O'Donnell, made at Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., Nov. 19, 1919, and the competitive record of 2:38.85, made by Frank Elliott at Cotati, Cal., April 2, 1922.

Durant made a record 5:04.05 for ten miles, an average of 118.4, and the competitive record made by Frank Elliott at Cotati, April 2, 1922. The latter's time was 5:14.40.

TRAINING CAMPS

YANKEES.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 15.—High winds today again prevented the Yankees from playing a regular game of ball. The gusty conduct of the air was regarded as a danger to the tender flippers of the pitchers, who suffered from kinks in their muscles after pitching during Monday's wind. The Yankees are lagging far behind their training schedule, but Manager Miller Huggins says he will not risk his pitchers. The recruits are not showing much worth.

ROBINS.

CLEVELAND, Fla., March 15.—Zack Wheat, Andy High, and Jack Fourtner are still holding out from the Brooklyn training camp. Reuther and club have almost agreed on terms, and the outplay is expected to sign soon. In a practice game yesterday Minnaux was knocked down by a line drive.

TIGERS.

Augusta, Ga., March 15.—The batting practice today gave Cobb an opportunity to use up his left handed burlers, Moore, Cole, and Francis, and drew praise for all of them. Moore, in particular, showed great promise. Ty feels he also has picked a winner in Francis, who was discarded by Washington. It was quoted as saying he was willing to wager that Francis would make more game than Zachary or Morrison. Francis' former team mates.

RED SOX.

HOT SPRING, Ark., March 15.—The Boston American league club considers it a "holdout" trouble at an end, according to Larry Graver, secretary. "We have no holdouts," Graver declared. "Mike Menckler and John Mitchell have signed and Clark Pittenger will sign as soon as he arrives. Carl Hellings, young Detroit pitcher, refuses to be induced to enter business, but he may reconsider and decide to play baseball. Balm interfered with regular practice today."

Cubs, First Division Club, May Finish Close to Top

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 15.—(Special.)—Chicago's Cubs for 1923 are a practically certain first division team, with but one or two chances of landing in the first three.

They may not win the National league pennant—this year—but they are, barring accidents, a coming championship team. They are the fastest team as they line up at the beginning of the real training games in their league, the best hustling team in the circuit, and the most cheerful team in either league.

This team is one of the most fascinating problems in baseball. It is the youngest team in major league baseball history, so far as the records show, and brilliant. No matter what else it is, it never will quit, and slumps will not worry it. Young teams always slump—but keep fighting.

Two Spots Are Favored.

Analyzing the Cubs, from their past performances as much as from the form they have shown at Chicago and thus far in action on the mainland, the two best spots are catcher and second base. In spite of the magnificent promise of Grantham, his great speed and his ability to hit, he is not yet a fixture, nor will he be until he has shown under league fire.

The catcher's position is not strong, although it averages up fairly well with the majority of the other catching staffs of the National. O'Farrell is showing steady improvement, and since he will catch at least 125 of the games, the others are not so important.

Wirt, who has great promise, has filed out and looks better, and as he is stronger at bat than Harriott, will be first under study.

Problem Is Second Base.

The big team problem, however, is second base. Grantham is fast, a free hitter, stands well at the plate, looks "em over, and busts them when they are over. He is faster than Stutz, and seems to exercise good judgment. Thus far he has shown in spotty fashion, brilliant, then bad, and he went off form after his first flash, then settled down to a steady, consistent performance.

Killefer is confident Grantham will last, but at the same time is preparing for contingencies. If Grantham breaks the Cubs and is in better condition than usually is the case, as Adams, undoubtedly, is a major league shortstop and Hollister is, in my opinion, a better second baseman than he is, a shortstop. Hollister does not want to be a shortstop.

But it is the spirit of this team that impresses me the most. There is no hustling, fighting, ambitious club. It will not be satisfied with anything short of a championship, and if not this year, then next or the next—for it is a year team that is now.

THE GUMPS—GUILTY—TWENTY YEARS

WILD HEART

BY IZOLA FORRESTER

SYNOPSIS.
Dr. Bradley Yates, scientist and discoverer of an antidote against certain poisons, is found in a state of apparent madness on a street in New York by Capt. Purkney Forbes, who is a state of apparent madness. Yates takes the young scientist to his room and cares for him until he regains consciousness, when he learns Yates' identity and that he is suffering from a mental breakdown. Yates seeks solitude and goes to the Tennessee mountains, where he takes the name of Pickings and lives as a typical mountaineer.

INSTALLMENT V.
MR. VAN DUSEN SENDS A TELEGRAM.
"Get any good strong rubber bands?" pursued Chipmunk a little later as he straddled the progressing fence and watched its builder chop. "I was looking for one along your shelf yonder, when she came along. Want it for my beany?"
"Your what?" Bradley glanced back at him in lazy good humor. He liked the boy's company after the months of silence. He was like a chipmunk even as his name, bright eyed, daring, and active. He held up a broken slingshot and dangled it regretfully.
"Busted it trying to hit a crow. Pappy used to get them for me down at Millcuddy's." He waited for encouragement, but Bradley chopped in silence.
"Don't never go down there, do you? I've got money to pay for them." He dove into his overall pocket and produced a folded green bill.
"Look at that, if you don't believe me," he sang out. "That's five dollars, ain't it? Feller in the Soup Bowl gave it to me for sending a telegram for him."

Bradley looked from the bill to the boy's face curiously. Pappy had said he had been missing from home for two days, and five dollar bills did not grow on huckle-berry bushes on Thunder mountain. Chipmunk dug his toes in the dirt.
"I ain't askin' you to do nuthin' special, be it? There ain't nobody else I dast tell, and I need the rubbers awful bad. I can hit anything with a beany when it works, but I have to have it. Ain't nuthin' but fish and squirrels now."

Bradley looked at him keenly. "Hunting no good these days?"
"Ain't no hunting," Chipmunk answered flatly. "You know those feller in the Soup Bowl? They say they're hunters, and all they do is set around and play cards. I watch 'em when they don't know it. And Talitha says the telegram says hunting's good up here."

Bradley mused. The telegram stated that hunting was good. What kind of hunting? Pappy had spoken, too, half suspiciously of the strangers in the Soup Bowl. He dropped the ax and stretch-d his arms widely in a yawn of relaxation. The day was hazy and golden, tempting one to adventure. He had not been away from the clearing for over two months, and here he had slipped an invitation into his hand to go roaming.

"I'll go, if you'll go home and let your n' now you're all right. Your dad came by today and said she wanted you."

"She does not," rejoined Chipmunk. "She knows I'm all right. He wants to get me and lick me. Know why? 'Cause I found out about them over yonder, and they're paying Pappy to keep folks away. And I told maw and she told Sally and Sally told Dolf Bingham so Pappy wouldn't get into no trouble over 'em. Sally's my sister and she's going to marry Dolf Bingham. He's sheriff around here."

He walked behind Bradley over through the woods to the cabin. The pappy lagged behind the boy's bare legs, nipping at the grasshoppers they passing roused from the thick grass. Bradley washed up and put on a clean, gray flannel shirt under Chipmunk's scrutiny.
"Don't you hate duds like pisen?" he asked, lazily. "I don't wear 'em half the time when I'm up on Thunder. What yer fixin' all up so cute for—Talitha?"

Bradley laughed, good humoredly.
"You promised you'd go home, if I took this down and got the rubbers for you, and you'd better make a start, hadn't you? You'll have to go some, Chipmunk. Better get it over."

"I could live up here with you, couldn't I? I'd like it. And I can swing as ax too."

"Swing it for your mother. I don't need you, and she must, with so many. Buck up now and hop along."

"I'll be up in the morning for the beany rubbers."

He started off on the home road toward the Soup Bowl and distant spur reluctantly, never looking back, even at Bradley's hail, but facing the inevitable "licking" and possibility of school with an abundant resourcefulness and optimism that overpowered the present crisis. Even if he did go back now he could always run away again. And there would be a hot supper and his mother waiting for him. His pace quickened into a dog trot along the narrow winding shortcut and Bradley passed down the opposite way toward the valley.

Millcuddy's Crossing was on some maps. A single track line connected it with the outer world that lay beyond the encircling mountains. There was a signal tower that was never occupied, and an unpainted gray freight shed with a telegraph office above, used by the lumber and coke people—never, in the memory of man, by any inhabitants. Across the dusty white road stood Sarpia's store, its upper story built against the sloping mountainside, its lower descending still farther down with a sort of platform where the customers hitched their teams. It was a friendly looking place. There were flower boxes along the porch, and wild cucumber and morning glory vines fighting for space with honeysuckle and rose over the front of the house and the uneasy balconies. One room held the store where Talitha presided, the low ceiling, long room next it held two rows of tables, and here Mrs. Millcuddy served meals to her boarders, men from the lumber camp mostly.

Bradley was unaware of the excitement he produced in the minds of all who sat out on the steps and porch of Sarpia's, when he mounted the outside steps that led to the telegraph office. They watched in silence until he came down again and crossed the road. Conversation had not lagged that afternoon. Nor were they assembled there without purpose. The entire social structure of the Crossing had suffered an upheaval during the past few months which had left its people grim and on the defensive. Through some process of governmental red tape it had been discovered as a plague spot upon the map of human progress, a human community without a school house, where nobody to speak of could read or write or cared to. The census taker had been a mild mannered, inoffensive sort of a man whom nobody had suspected. He had come and gone like any other agent, and Millcuddy's Crossing never guessed that his report had placed it at the head of illiterate townships, or that suddenly social investigators had become fascinated by the responsibility of educating the youth of Thunder mountain.

And today the prominent citizens were assembled to see the arrival on the sixteen freight of the most unwelcome visitor they had ever expected. It had lasted just three minutes of that time when "Pickings" descended from the telegraph office, and rent their inclinations asunder. It was a township which they wanted to do most, climb up and find out what sort of a telegram he had sent, or watch for the upbound train.

Dolf eyed him steadily as he nodded and passed into the store. All strangers were objects of official suspicion with Dolf. He had been a far sighted and neighborly marshal before prohibition had culled one of the joys of life on the mountain, and the mantle of sheriff had fallen on his shoulders naturally, like the county's seal of approval on his past omens in the line of duty. It was not so much Dolf's province now to discover any wrongdoers as to see that nobody from the outer world put anything over on Millcuddy's Crossing. As the freight crawled finally up the track, Dolf put away before pleasure and climbed the steps to the telegraph station. Old Socks was bent over the instrument, a lean, intent man with the expression of a young opossum. He glanced up at the spirit with a little half smile, and moved a sheet of paper over something that lay on the table.

"Needn't cover it up, Socks. I want to have a look at it," Dolf said, slowly. He reached for the folded piece of paper underneath and read the message given to Chipmunk by the hunters.
"This the first one?"
Socks's blue eyes blinked.
"First I've seen."

"And he don't read or write, and he don't know nobody." The sheriff shook the paper in his hand pocket. "And you couldn't catch so much as a mouse over on Thunder this time of year. Maybe there's other hunters around that he don't know about."

He went down the stairs to add his welcome to Millcuddy's in honor of the stranger the freight had left behind.

Sheehan Sings with Opera in Our Language

Stock Orchestra Gives Children's Concert.

BY EDWARD MOORE.
That eager band that gives matinee performances at the Playhouse under the auspices of the Opera in Our Language Foundation, Inc., was augmented yesterday afternoon by the presence of Joseph Sheehan, "Cavalier Rusticana," was the opera, and Turiddu, Mr. Sheehan's role, with all the ins and outs of a part of which he has had a familiar acquaintance for the last quarter of a century, more or less. There was a houseful to witness his return.

Also in the afternoon there was another children's concert at Orchestra hall, with Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra presenting instruction well disguised as entertainment. Another capacity audience. The evening introduced Maria Heron, soprano, and Agnes Knodtka, violinist, to their first professional Chicago audience at Fine Arts Recital hall. Both artists offered much the same case: youth, development that has been excellent as far as has gone, the need of further development, and it would seem, the positive talent to make it worth while.

At the Auditorium the Russian opera company was entertaining a good sized audience with another performance of that bit of meriment known as "A Night of Love." It is the best of the light musical entertainments, making constant quotations from other operas that are not only melodious but witty in their timeliness, and having them well sung into the bargain.

Scotch "Dancing Fools" Go 21 Hours Without Stop

LONDON, March 15.—When Santos Casani, a former aviator, stopped his continuous dancing performance at Hammersmith early this morning with a record of 18:34.90, he thought that he had established a new world record. His efforts were vain, for when he finished two couples in Edinburgh danced 21:16:00. They were Miss Mary Donnelly and Joseph Young and Miss Lena Hansen and Hugh MacKay. Casani carried a pedometer, which registered 63 miles 1,410 yards when he stopped.

H. D. NUGENT, LONG BRITISH CONSUL HERE, TO RETIRE

Members of the consular corps in Chicago bade farewell yesterday to their monthly luncheon at the Drake hotel to Horace Dickinson Nugent, British consul general for Chicago, since 1909. Mr. Nugent is leaving for London in a short time, after being here considerably longer than the usual term of two years.

During his residence here Mr. Nugent has taken an active part in the social activities of the Union League, University, Owensville, and Chicago clubs, of which he was a member. He was entitled to a pension, a number of years ago, but was prevailed upon to remain both on account of his valuable services and on account of the number of friends he had made for his country.

Geographic Society Gets Home in Field Museum

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Geographic Society is today. A home for the society has been made available through the courtesy of the trustees of the Field Museum, where a large room on the second floor has been designated for its use. Henry J. Patten, former president, has contributed $1,000 toward the purchase of furnishings for the room, with the understanding that the balance of the $3,000 necessary will be forthcoming from other members.

The Ask Me Lady Has a Word to Say About Organ Sales

C. TO K. There is no explanation for those "abominable organ sales." I'm not crazy yet—but expect to be soon if I have to sit through many more of them. Typical songs are all right in their way, but certainly an offense who pays to see a feature picture shouldn't be called upon to sit through an interminable interval during which musky verses are chaf on the screen to temperamental organ accompaniment. You bet I DO!

ANNA G. Theodore Roberts is in valde at present. But don't worry; he'll be in picture again soon. They all get tired of doing one thing, and try something else for a change now and then. No, May McAvoy is not married. Jacqueline Logan is the girl you mean. Yes, enough like Miss McAvoy to be her twin (in the screen).

HENRY. Better get what's in your eye out. You'll feel better. Think you saw the wrong party, at that.

ESTHER. I understand that Marion Davies is working on "Little Old New York." Y'winkin'.

J. J. Walter Hiers is married to Miss "Peaches" MacWilliams. She is the daughter of a shoe manufacturer. No, I don't think he'll get the big head. If he does—good-by, stardom. But I don't think he will. Looks like he has too much sense.

CORA. Nothing has happened to Miss Roberts that we know of. You will soon see her in a picture called "Backstage." Huckleberry weighs 105 pounds. No trouble at all.

ABASHED. Sad—but true!
FAN: Katherine MacDonald is to be seen in a First National picture called "Refuge." They say that in it she will wear a cloak fairly "worth its weight in gold." Or peach velvet, lined throughout with gold cloth, brocade. Yum!

CLOSEUPS.

Universal thinks that in "The Abysmal Brute" it has turned out a mean bit of screen work. Anyhow, everybody connected with the company is running around patting themselves and each other on the back—backs—about it.

Barbara La Marr is said to be almost as good a business woman as Mary Pickford. She insists on contracting for each picture separately. (Idea being, I suppose, that when they find out how good she is, she'll be a busy little bee to dictate terms.) No Valentino contracts for her.

Marguerite Courtot and Raymond McKee are to be married the latter part of April. They have been engaged since she was a little girl in pigtails and he a tease boasting his first pair of long breeches. While working together in "Down to the Sea in Ships" they decided it wouldn't be so bad to get married—so—press agent duly files affidavit.

The Inquiring Reporter Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your questions to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question: Miss Blanche D. Kaufman, P. O. box 67, Elkhart, Ind., was awarded $5.

The Question.

What is your favorite animal?
Where Asked.
Ogden public school [kindergarten department].

The Answers.
Rudolph Busch, 666 Rush street, 5 years old—The elephant, because he's so big and funny. The monkeys, because they can climb and do all kinds of things. And the tiger, because they look like a big cat grown big and they make all kinds of funny noises.

Alice Madsen, 195 East Chestnut street, 7 years old—I like rabbits, because—And squirrels, because when they hop they look so cute. I like little puppies, because they stand up and let you take their feet and shake hands with you.

Stephens Schofield, 738 North State street, 6 years old—I like a horse, because you can get a ride out of them. I like a dog, because he won't bite you. Some dogs bite, but ours won't. I like a bird, because they sing around you. Dogs you can play with, but you can't with horses; horses will eat you up.

Esther Panor, "I live down there," pointing southwest (715 North Dearborn street), 5 years old—I like lions, because they play around the cage and go to sleep. I like elephants, and I like to see the fishes in the water. I have seen the monkeys lying down—I'd like to have one at home, because they don't bite. Henry Kerozy, 5 West Division street, 5 years old—Monkeys, because they look so funny; they jump around on poles; sometimes they fight together. Roosters, because sometimes they crow in the morning and wake you up. And birds; sometimes when you play music they sing like everything.

Harding Cruises to Island for Deep Sea Fishing

Miami, Fla., March 15.—All prepared for deep sea fishing, President Harding tonight was at Coccolob Cay, a small island about twenty-five miles south of Miami. Whether the President will be able tomorrow to vary his vacation trip by trying to land a barracuda, an amberjack or a king fish, appeared to depend on the weather.

The President and the members of the fishing party, which includes Chairman Lasker of the shipping board, Secretary Christian, Charles G. Dawes, Carl G. Fisher, John Oliver Lagore of the National Geographic society, E. C. Romfy, Miami banker; Brig. Gen. Sawyer, and James A. Allison, left here aboard the express cruiser Seahorse. The run to Coccolob Cay was made in two hours.

Mr. Harding tonight is farther from the crowds and the cares of office than at any other time during his vacation trip. Coccolob Cay is scarcely more than ten acres in area, is separated from the mainland by Biscayne bay, and can be communicated with only by radio.

100 Physicians Aiding City Get $1 a Year Reward

Health Commissioner Budewen's recommendation that "as an act of courtesy" nationally known physicians who are aiding the health department in a consulting staff be placed on the city pay roll at $1 a year was approved by the finance committee yesterday. There are 100 on the list.

"The services of these men could not be bought by the city," Dr. Budewen said. "They are giving their time free in the interests of public health." Among those the commissioner mentioned to the finance committee were Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, Dr. David S. Hillis, Dr. Isaac A. Abt, Dr. Arthur I. Kendall, Dr. Ludwig Hektoen, Dr. William A. Evans, Dr. John Dill Robertson, and Dr. Julius H. Hoss.

Thousands Orphans to Be Shriners' Circus Guests

The Shriners' big annual circus and indoor carnival opens tomorrow afternoon in Medinah temple, Casa and Ohio streets, with 1,000 orphans from various institutions as its guests. Last year the circus made it possible for the Shriners to donate $25,000 to the Illinois Masonic hospital and smaller sums to the Eastern Star home at Rockford, the Old People's home at Sullivan, and the Masonic Orphans' home at La Grange, and it is hoped this year the donations will be larger.

According to the announcements, "there will be a myriad of sawdust talent such as is seldom seen outside of the big circuses. There will be clowns without number and prizes for the ladies and the children."

Princess Yolanda Sets Wedding Day for April 9

ROME, March 15.—[By the Associated Press.]—The marriage of Princess Yolanda, eldest daughter of King Victor Emmanuel, to Count Calvi di Barolo, has been definitely fixed for April 9. The civil ceremony will be performed in the large hall of the royal palace and the religious ceremony in the Pauline chapel westward. Quirinal Premier Mussolini will act as notary of the crown, and Tommaso Tittoni, president of the senate, will perform the civil marriage.

Colleges Urged to Expand Teachers' Training Period

A higher standard of training for teachers was advocated yesterday at the convention of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools at the Hotel Sherman. Representatives of Illinois and Ohio institutions urged that teachers be required to devote fifteen hours to professional study in the 120-hour college course. The present requirement is eleven hours.

Reporter Sees Himself as a Traveling Man

Best and Worst of Life Span of His Day.

Romance in routine; haste in humor; the biggest thought in the smallest word; the longest story in the shortest space; the noblest and the meanest—that is the span of a reporter's day.

That was the thought Phillip Kinsley, CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, gave students at the Medill school of journalism of Northwestern university last night in an epigrammatic address on "Reporting at Home and Abroad."

"It must be such a fascinating life," Mr. Kinsley made that his text, so to speak. He said hundreds of persons had made the remark to him.

"I do not want to tear down any of your air castles, but tonight I feel more like a drummer than an adventurer," he said. "Living out of a suitcase, seeing your family at week ends, with hotels and restaurants, strange towns, and a telegraph key making up your normal life, makes one feel quite prosaic and businesslike."

"Instead of selling 'alico we are selling news—by the yard, by its color, by its strength. The market fluctuates every night. We work in a factory and turn out a human necessity."

Then the speaker gave details of his own far flung experiences as a reporter, from Europe to the Philippines, embracing association with some of the most notable characters of the age. Some of the essentials and some of the ethics of reporting he expounded as follows:

"Simple statement is best and the hardest to get."

"Redundancy, mere phraseology, words, go with a half knowledge."

"Credit your readers with imagination and seek just to touch it awake. Restraint is one of the most valued attributes of news writing."

"Some one knows the facts about every story."

"Stand up for yourself as a reporter. If you respect yourself the world will respect you."

"Remember, you meet only the big people. The cheap people aren't worth quoting."

The lecture followed a banquet at the Palmer house at which four minute addresses were delivered by George C. Eastman of THE TRAVELER, William J. Clark of the American, Edith Wyatt, novelist and essayist; O. L. Hall of the Journal, and Virginia Dale of the Journal.

PORTS FREELY; TRAFFIC TRADING

The New York and Chicago stock exchanges will be closed on March 16, which is Good Friday. The New York and New Orleans stock exchanges will be closed both Friday and Saturday.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Prosperous America is willing to help the rest of the world by liberal purchase of goods. Other countries are striving to balance their trade with a more proportionate exchange of commodities. The new tariff law appears to have little effect on our international trade. These conclusions may be deduced from data made public yesterday by the commerce department. Our February exports, totaling $310,000,000, were the smallest in three months, comparing with $318,000,000 in January and $314,300,000 in December. Last month's total, however, was well above the $250,000,000 aggregate in February, 1922. Furthermore, total exports for the eight months of the fiscal year ending last month were $2,657,000,000, compared with $2,600,000,000 in the corresponding previous period.

While our export trade, therefore, has not gone so badly, it is patent that we are buying more freely of foreign commodities. Imports of gold to the United States last month of $1,200,000,000, compared with $1,200,000,000 in the corresponding previous period.

The decline in gold imports in the last eight months is attributed to the balance of trade by treasury officials. Although the likelihood of large gold exports from the United States has been forecasted recently, the trade trend is about to have been strong enough to decrease the import rate without increasing exportation of gold.

L. A. N. Stock Dividend.

The railroad stock dividends aggregating more than $500,000,000, announced yesterday, came as a unique experience in financial history of recent years. The directors of the Louisville and Nashville voted a 25% per cent stock dividend, equalizing $10,000,000 of the $40,000,000 surplus. The stock dividend is payable May 10 to stock of record April 16. A semi-annual cash dividend of 2% per cent was declared, payable Aug. 10 to stock of record July 17. As the new stock will receive this dividend, the declaration is equivalent to more than 8 per cent on the present stock.

The Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, a 118 mile line, sought permission of the Interstate Commerce commission to pay a stock dividend of $1,417,000 from its accumulated corporate surplus of more than $5,000,000.

No Evidence of "Inflation."

No suggestion of "inflation" or of an immediate likelihood of an advance in interest rates is contained in the weekly report of the federal reserve system. While there has been a moderate expansion of loans in the last week, probably due to the opening of the spring season, there was a recession in paper currency. The consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks shows loans increased $1,577,000, bills bought, $6,428,000, total bills, $14,100,000, and total earning assets, $14,328,000. Gold and total reserves declined $5,347,000 and $1,703,000 respectively. Total deposits expanded $2,557,000, with the member banks' reserve credit increasing $2,517,000. Federal reserve note circulation dropped $12,000,000. The ratio of total reserves to deposit and federal reserve liabilities combined fell to 82.1 from 83.3 per cent in the preceding week.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank's statement shows loans increased $1,145,000, bills bought, $1,123,000, total bills, $1,145,000, and total earning assets, $1,145,000.
